COURT REFUSES TO STOP HUNGER STRIKE OF SLAYER SACCO

REJECTS PLAN OF STATE

Bartolomeo Vanzetti, likewise convicted of murder in the first degree.

WIFE OPPOSES PLAN.

Counsel for the defence conferred with Mrs. Rose Sacco, the convicted man's wife. She was opposed to the suggestion. Lawyers for both sides tried to influence her to change her mind.

Sacco did not appear in court.

Judge Thayer refused to issue an order to transfer Sacco to a hospital. He asserted this was a question which must be decided by Mrs. Sacco and the counsel for the defence.

A request was made to her to agree that her husband should be sent to an insane asylum, not as an insane patient, but so that his hunger strike could be defeated.

She demurred. This, she said, would be unfair to Sacco as he might be kept in the institution for an indefinite period.

VISITED BY ALIENISTS.

A proposition was then made that he be sent for two weeks in order that his strength might be built up by forcible feeding so that he might appear in court.

There was a lengthy conference on this issue. Mrs. Sacco had not changed her determination at a late hour today.

It became known that two prominent alienists had examined Sacco secretly in his cell during the past few hours.

It was unofficially reported that they had pronounced him sane, although in a highly disturbed mental and nervous state.

Sacco, entering his thirtieth day of fast, told jail officials he was too weak to stand the ordeal of the court chamber.

But Dr. Arthur, jail physician, after an examination of Sacco, declared he was ready to testify before Judge Webster R. Thayer that the defendant could appear in court long enough to take the witness stand.

The doctor does not believe Sacco could stay through the session.

Sacco's assertion he would not appear added a new legal complication to the case. Lengthy argument was held in the judge's lobby whether Sacco's petition could be postponed and the hearing proceed on Vanzetti's appeal. There was possibility that another adjournment might be taken.

Sacco's stubbornness bids fair to defeat the aims of his counsel and friends. There is strong likelihood his action may prevent a decision on his request for a new trial. His grim determination to continue his hunger strike may spoil the chances of his friend Vanzetti. The legal entanglements due to Sacco's action were so involved that even the attorneys were confused at times.

ARMED GUARDS ON DUTY.

Intense interest marked the resumption of the hearing. Fully 500 persons, mostly Italians, were gathered about the Court House and the jail, five minutes away.

Arthur D. Hill

Armed guards barred the entrances. All persons seeking admission were subjected to a search for concealed weapons. As soon as the seats were filled all others were stopped from entering.

Vanzetti appeared in court a few minutes before 10 o'clock, the hour of opening. He stalked stolidly down the aisle to the prisoner's dock, handcuffed to a deputy from Charlestown prison.

The accused murderer gave no sign of emotion until he came abreast of Sacco's little son. He stopped short. Tears glistened in his eyes. He patted the child on the head and whispered something in Italian. Mrs. Sacco bowed her head.

The chamber was as still as death.

Great surprise was occasioned by the appearance of two new attorneys for the defence. They are Arthur D. Hill, former corporation counsel of Boston under Mayor Peters, and William G. Thompson, a member of the Boston Bar Association Grievance Committee.

Neither they nor Fred A. Moore, Jeremiah J., or Thomas F. McAnarney, the original defence counsel, would offer any comment as to the part they would take.

Rumors of all sorts were current as Mr. Thompson and Mr. Hill entered. Their injection into the case had been kept a secret.

The case assumed international proportions again today. Cable dispatches from Rome state that Premier Mussolini has cabled Ambassador Gaetani at Washington "to study, if possible, the friendly intervention of the American government in the case Sacco-Vanzetti."

Sacco has lost twenty-two pounds since he began his hunger strike on February 15. He now weighs 126 pounds. His pulse dropped two points in twenty-four hours, registering 56 today as against 58 on Tuesday and Wednesday. His temperature was 96; blood pressure 72.60 as against 80 on Tuesday and respiration sub-normal.

Sub-normal pulse and temperature are considered graver than super-temperature and pulse. They denote slow dissolution. Sacco's condition since Tuesday shows that death has gripped him. Dr. Worthington denied that he fixed any time for Sacco's end from starvation. He said it is impossible to estimate how long the patient may linger.

EVA FONTAINE DODGED N. Y. DETECTIVES

New York, March 16. (By International News Service).—Even Burrows Fontaine did not keep her engagement to dance last night at the Little Club, just off the Great White Way. Patrons were disappointed. So were Sheriff George Brown of Rickland County and four detectives who had a warrant for Miss Fontaine's arrest on a charge of perjury growing out of her $1,000,000 suit against Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, who, she alleges, was the father of her son.

At 2 a. m. the dancer had not appeared and Brown called in his sleuths and gave up the siege. He said he would make no further search for her until he saw whether she and her mother, also indicted for perjury, surrendered to court at Nyack.

HUB MAN HELD IN DEATH OF ART MODEL

the last eighteen months under the name of Dorothy King.

A small bottle labeled chloroform lay on the floor, drawers of the bureau had been ransacked, and jewelry the girl was known to possess was missing. This led the police to believe that robbery was the motive for the crime.

The police today were seeking for two young men who had escorted the model to her apartment shortly after midnight Thursday.

Guimares, who has been living at the Embassy Hotel, is known to have been with Miss King at eleven o'clock Wednesday morning. He was not, however, one of the men who escorted her home some twelve hours later.

Guimares later was arrested on a charge of violating the State law against carrying weapons without a permit, after the police had discovered an automatic pistol and a round of cartridges in his valise at his hotel.

INVOLVED WITH HUB FIRM.

Detectives said that Guimares was involved with McLaughlin & Company, Boston stock brokers, members of which were indicted in that city in connection with the sale of stock, more than a year ago. He told them, he said, that he had known Miss Kiernan for about eighteen months and saw her last on Wednesday when she visited him at the Hotel Embassy.

Guimares also was said to have told that he knew several persons who figured in the New Year's Eve party which culminated in the drugging of Mrs. C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf, who was robbed of jewels valued at $500,000.

ESCORTS HID FACES.

Ella Bradford, the negro maid, found the body of her mistress, clad in her night garments lying across the bed at noon Thursday. The maid lived at home.

Police learned from John Thomas, the elevator operator, that Miss Kiernan's escorts Thursday morning concealed their features by turning up their coat collars as they entered the elevator. Thomas said that one of the men had left Miss King's rooms after remaining there about forty-five minutes. Thomas declared that he did not know when the second man came away from the apartment.

Miss Bradford, the maid, said she had last seen the young woman alive at seven o'clock Wednesday night, at which time she helped the girl dress for a dinner party. At that time Miss King was wearing a diamond and sapphire bracelet, a 2½-karat diamond ring, a pearl ring and a lavaliere containing a pear-shaped sapphire. None of these pieces of jewelry were found.

Detectives spent the night questioning the model's mother and two brothers, the colored maid, the negro elevator attendants and other witnesses in the apartment house. Miss Kiernan had been employed as a clothing model and was known as "The best dressed girl on West Fifty-seventh street."

Both of the escorts were said by neighbors to have been frequent callers at the girl's flat.

HARVARD PROFESSOR SAILS FOR ITALY

Professor Francis G. Peabody, of Harvard, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Gertrude W. Peabody, and her chum, Miss Isabella Hopkinson of Cambridge, were among the 125 passengers who embarked for Italy aboard the Italian liner Giuseppe Verdi. The steamer, which arrived from New York, sailed after taking aboard passengers here.

TRAP 6 MORE IN CRUSADE IN LYNN

Six defendants caught in raids by the new Lynn vice squad were held in $300 for trial March 22 in Lynn Court today. The raids bring the total to eight since the Interchurch Union of Lynn threatened to clean up the city by a zoning system.

Two women were arrested. Mary Rocco, of No. 13 Neptune court, and Stella A. Nisciewicz. The latter was arrested with her husband William at their dry goods store at No. 24 River street. A quantity of liquor was found.

William J. Scanlon and Joseph L. Baum were arrested at their pool room, No. 243 Western avenue. Carl E. Hines was arrested in his home at No. 66 Light street, where a fifteen-gallon still and two gallons of moonshine were found.

PLUNGES 3 STORIES FROM FIRE ESCAPE

Joseph Chassion, fifty years old, married, of No. 34 Church street, Dorchester, fell three stories, when a fire escape on which he was working at No. 48 Rutland street, South End collapsed. He was removed to the City Hospital with broken right arm and leg. He had been at work polishing furniture.

WRATH OF IRISH REBELS DEFIED BY GIRL

Dublin, March 16.—Another striking instance of the heroism of the population in the face of the promiscuous sabtoage by the Republicans against the railroads ocurred today.

A farmer's daughter, finding the rails had ben torn up at the approach to a bridge over a deep gorge between Ballina and Dublin, flagged a train conveying a number of wounded Free State troops and civilian passengers. The train was stopped within a yard of the abyss.

The girl, by her action, deliberately defied the possible dire consequences of thwarting the plans of the Republicans.

POISON CLEW IN DEATH OF 2 SISTERS

Chicago, March 16.—Finding of a powerful poison in a bottle of medicine, believed by a coroner's chemist to have caused the death of two sisters, Mary F. Cummings, 30, and Anna Cummings, 35, within a month today started police on an inquiry that contemplated exhumation of the younger sister's body.

After questioning numerous persons police said they could find no motive for substitution of poison for part of the original contents of the bottle.

FIREMAN SAVES 3 IN PEABODY BLAZE

Chester Carlin, a Peabody fireman, figured as the hero in the rescue of a mother, her newborn babe and a six-year-old daughter from a burning building and protecting them from injury, although sustaining severe burns himself, in his dash down a flame-swept stairway. Carlin's clothing was flaming when he reached the street and bystanders rolled him in snow to save him.

Carlin, off duty, was on his way home, when he saw the store of Harris Paraska, at No. 31 Harris street, was all ablaze. The tenement above was occupied by the family of Arestes Paraskasopolis, and although flames filled the stairway, Carlin dashed up, finding Mrs. Paraskasopolis in bed with her infant and a girl of six cowering in terror in the kitchen.

REPRISAL PLOT IN IRELAND

to the Republican movement and newspaper editors.

The houses of all persons assassinated were to be destroyed.

An ammunition dump, established by Republicans, was found near Kimmage Manor. Twelve men were arrested.

A Free State soldier was killed here during the night in a fusillade of firing by a band of armed men.

Serious trouble is anticipated tomorrow (St. Patrick's Day) over the attempt to hold the prize fight between "Battling" Siki, and Mike McTigue. Republicans, who are said to have acted upon order from De Valera, ordered the fight called off, meanwhile commanding that all places of public amusement be closed.

Scala Theatre, where the fight is to be staged, was placed under guard of Free State troops. All the doors were barred to prevent Republicans from entering and placing time bombs beneath the floor.

The promoters, supported by the Free State government, said the fight would be held as advertised despite the Republican order for "National mourning for Irish dead on St. Patrick's Day."

The Way of a Modern Artist Is Hard

The Path of Michael Angelo Was Also Thorny

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Patrick J. Moloney of No. 553 Fifty-sixth street, Brooklyn, N. Y., wants to know how the young artist of today can possibly hope to get along, when nobody wants to buy anything except "old masterpieces." Mr. Moloney has taken his own paintings to great public museums only to be told that they did not want MODERN work.

It is discouraging and made more so by the fact that this is not an age of art. The human race, like an individual human being, does only ONE THING really well at a time.

Just at present the race is engaged in industrial development, and all that goes with it, science, machinery, engineering. The mind of the race is not on art. Therefore the individual who chooses to devote himself to an art career is going outside of the general current and will probably land nowhere, or at least not travel far.

However, young artists of this day can find some comfort in the experiences of the artists of olden times. If. Mr. Moloney went to the great art museums, or, better still, to some American hundred-time millionaire, with a genuine first-class painting by Michael Angelo, he would get the warmest welcome and a million dollars for the painting.

Yet Michael Angelo, when he was a youth, before he had begun his really great work and gained recognition, might have written a letter like that of Mr. Moloney.

In order to attract attention Michael Angelo made a statue of marble, imitating the style of the ancient Greek sculptors, then very fashionable in Italy. He buried his statue of marble in the ground to make it look old. After a certain length of time he dug it up and shipped it to a famous rich Cardinal in Rome, telling him that he had dug it up.

The Cardinal sent word to him, "Tell nobody where you found the statue. I shall pay you well for it and shall come and have excavating done in the hope of finding similar beautiful works of art."

Michael Angelo replied that the Cardinal need not bother to do any digging, inasmuch as he himself had made the wonderful Greek "antique" and could make as many more as the Cardinal might care to buy.

This Cardinal, a wise man with a sense of humor, took the imposture kindly and became a friend of Michael Angelo.

Later the Pope himself was Michael Angelo's patron and gave him as one job the building of St. Peter's, most magnificent church in the world.

After he had built the church he worked for years making magnificent paintings that adorn it.

A good deal of his time unfortunately was wasted by Papal orders, in developing marble quarries, which might as well have been attended to by somebody else.

But, thanks to the Popes, his genius was brought out, fully developed. Incidentally it is as far above that of all other artists, except the ancient Greeks, as Niagara is above our other waterfalls.

Yet, in spite of this, Mr. Moloney and other young artists will notice that Michael Angelo himself had to "fake" a Greek antique in order to attract immediate and profitable attention.

Forty-Eight Hour Law

The House of Representatives in Rhode Island under Democratic control has just passed the law which limits the time in which women and minors can be employed in the factories of Rhode Island to forty-eight hours a week.

This is the law which has been in operation in Massachusetts for some years. It is the law which all the progressive States in the country enjoy. It has never been repealed anywhere it was once adopted. Last month the Democratic majority put the same law through the House of Representatives in the Granite State, but the Senate, which is Republican by gerrymander, killed it.

We suppose that the Rhode Island Senate, which is also Republican by virtue of gerrymandered districts, will defeat the forty-eight-hour bill in Rhode Island.

Very well, the Republican party will have to take the responsibility of rejecting a humane and progressive reform. The Democrats of Rhode Island and New Hampshire need not be discouraged. It is a Pyrrhic victory for their opponents. If they stand fast they will soon control the Legislatures. For a just cause is not permanently defeated unless it is deserted.

Our Political Judges

A representative of the Boston Bar Association was arguing against the bill for the election of judges. He argued that judges must be kept out of politics and must not owe their appointment to politics. Whereupon Representative Mellen of Charlestown remarked that it was a truism that all our judges are appointed, directly or indirectly, through politics, and their appointments are either the reward of political service rendered by the appointee himself to the party in power or as a reward for the same kind of service rendered by his friends who urged his appointment.

This is absolutely true in most cases. Nor does it follow that this method results in bad judges. Men who have een successful in the rough and tumble of politics know an nature and have vastly more experience in human han the kind of man whom a committee of the bar e likely to recommend, and if anybody thinks a bar association is disinterested they upon the disinterestedness of than upon the disinterest-

h a committee of a bar

WINIFRED BLACK ON "DOLLS"

By Winifred Black

"THERE!" said the philosopher. "There, I feel better about it."

And then when I had questioned him persistently he told me what he meant.

"I'm a queer old codger," he said. "I like folks and I believe in them. I hate to think that the world is going to the dogs, and something terrible is happening to the boys and girls.

"They aren't real flesh-and-blood young men and young women—these ultra-moderns with the strange modern ways. They're just paper-doll people, and they're imitating the things they think real people do, and of course it doesn't hurt them any because they just have paper-doll blood and paper-doll hearts, and the whole business of loving is just a make-believe affair to them.

I wonder what the paper-doll people would have to say about it if they knew?

Stockholders' Bill

Editor Boston American:

Your editorial, "Stockholders' Bill," was a very well argued and timely article and I trust that it may result in stopping this pernicious bill. I regret to learn, however, that it has already passed the Senate. The argument advanced, that the legislation is desired for the purpose of keeping stockholders' lists out of the hands of brokers, speculators and stock pedlars, is laughable, especially when one knows some of the people who are back of this bill.

The rights of minority stockholders are feeble enough under our law, and what rights they now have will be completely undetermined if the legislation proposed passes. You will render a real public service by carrying on a campaign against this bill.

Irish Republicans

In these days when the world looks on at the warfare raging in Ireland in order that the British Empire may remain intact, let me quote the motives of the men and women of the Republican Party:

"We are ready to welcome peace with England on the basis of full, separate independence, which is a just basis, and our cause is the common cause of mankind. To that cause we have pledged ourselves and our people to remain faithful unto death."—From the message of the Dail Eireann, 1921, to the people of the United States.

Co-ed Chaperons

Editor Boston American:

Thank you, ever so much for your article in favor of our co-ed students. The attitude of the faculty has been very disappointing to many a student of B. U. In justice to all concerned and to the school especially, this affair ought to have been disposed of without broadcasting it all over the world, as in a certain other paper in Boston. I think that the days when a girl student needed a chaperon, who really was having a nice nap and not watching the young people are gone, and am quite sure that therefore the drastic measures of Dean Davis were overdone.

Many Articles to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

I would like the address of Anna and Helen for some clothing, and the address of Mrs. G. If you think the above have plenty of offers, kindly give me other names, please, the only limitation being for a boy smaller than six years, and I would like a little girl to do things for, as I have none of my own. The other things are a single gift for a size 36 and 13 years. Also I have a pair of bow-leg braces for a child two years old, made by a fine orthopedic surgeon, and have shoes attached. I think you are doing a wonderful work.

MRS. E. M.

ED. NOTE—May we return the compliment? The two you mention have had several offers, so I will send you the address of Mrs. C. N. P., who has a boy five. If you are interested in helping some girl, would you not prefer to find someone in New Bedford? We will hold that part of your offer to see if there is not some deserving little lady of four or five or so in that city. The address of a girl who wears size 36 and of a girl thirteen will be sent you also.

For R. T. L.

Editor Helping Hand:

I saw your ad about a woman signing "R. T. L.," who asked for some canvas pieces. I have a large awning that I would only too gladly give her if she would be willing to pay for the postage. Also if you will send me the address of the two sisters who signed themselves Helen and Anna I will try and send a pretty brown suit that is somewhat worn, but could be made as good as new.

THE TISBO CASE IS ANOTHER BRIEF FOR AMERICANIZATION

By Herbert Kaufman

TISBO, an Italian private banker and steamship agent, decamps, leaving empty vaults behind him. He won't get far—the bloodhounds of the air are ahead, searching all lands and seas. Wherever a train goes, a motor drives or a ship points, a radio barrier rises across its tracks—an invisible net, but stronger than meshes of steel.

The Tisbo concern was not under State or Federal supervision. Half its bankrupted depositors though won't know that. They'll blame the authorities as well as the absconder.

The age-old wail of injustice for the poor is already sounding through the tenements.

More applauding crowds in the making for the next blatherskite, who gets up on a soap box and yelps at democracy.

Another brief for Americanization.

Bond Private Banks or End Them

People who read and write and speak English aren't so easily deluded or exploited. Foxes are fattest in goose country. Cunning instinctively preys upon benightedness.

The safeguards with which this republic surrounds all its people might as well not exist for multitudes who have no means of learning about them.

Our roads are marked and they can't spell the signs. Protection is at their elbow with no tongue to declare itself.

The Tisbo episode should be the final argument for English and vernacular posters in every private bank, plainly stating the irresponsibility under which they operate. Or better still, for the adequate bonding or elimination of private banks.

The Man With a Fifty-Cent Dollar

Compulsory education will tend to banish many loose and unsavory practices. Our seven million mainly non-reading aliens are always at the mercy of shysters and sharpers. So are several million unschooled Americans. Few of these folk are aware of pure food statutes; they can't benefit from sanitary progress, read health bulletins or know what Congress is doing in the common interest.

Opportunity and justice are theirs and the nation has not qualified them to inherit the estate. Rascally shopkeepers, lawyers, landlords and employers constantly pick the illiterate's pocket and outrage his privileges.

An uninformed man's dollar is a perpetual fifty-cent piece; he never gets full value for his money or time. The food adulterator, the shoddy seller, the labor agent and all the sharks preying in the back waters of trade and finance fatten on his wages.

The Statue of Liberty will hold a brighter torch when the statute of literacy is chiseled on the base.

An Unwise and Perilous Economy

Every nerve of commerce reaches to New York—now the first market place of the world and chief counting house of civilization.

Whatever the transactions of the continent some phase of every important barter is determined in Manhattan.

Cotton planter, wheat grower, manufacturer, mine operator and retailer, in one way or another, must keep in touch with the affairs of the great port through which international traffic passes in steadily increasing volume.

New York is henceforth to have fewer letter deliveries. A blow at efficiency everywhere. Lagging clocks for all offices and plants. The rest of the country will immediately suffer from tardy correspondence, delayed shipments and kindred brakes upon prosperity.

Forty-eight States may prepare to twinge whenever the metropolis is pinched.

Will Hays, when postmaster-general, called it the neck of our entire mail system, and worked persistently to widen the pass and expand service.

Mr. New contemplates an unwise and perilous economy.

Time Adopts a New Foot-Print

Talking pictures are ready for delivery. De Forest has perfected simultaneous photography of speech and action. All a matter of sight and sound waves.

Celluloid thus becomes the first complete and exact historian. Your grandchildren will meet Harding face to face and hear his living voice.

What a pity that man was so late in wrinkling his brow. Anything that happens today was possible to ingenuity when Antony stood above slain Caesar and Christ preached on the mount.

Twenty-first century libraries will be cinema reels; all coming greatness is to leave its image and intonation behind. The lense is mightier than the pen.

Needless Excitement—We Don't Want 'Em

Meanwhile in Abyssinia and under the same sun, slaves crowd the auction block. The price of able-bodied workers ranges from $6 to $24. Women are much cheaper and children may be had at your own figure.

The League of Nations at Geneva is considering what to do about it. "Considering what to do about it" seems to be the limit of league action.

Rene Gouzy, also at Geneva, commenting upon the proposal to liquidate allied indebtedness to the United States by trading in the Antilles, complains that the exchange smells too much like a packing house deal. "This traffic in countries belongs to other periods," he virtuously protests. "A colony is no longer sold like a barrel of molasses."

M. Gouzy is a Frenchman. You'll notice that he does not touch upon certain "packing house deals" in which his own government recently participated.

It makes quite a difference whose bull is gored.

The End of "the $26,000 Mystery"

Anderson loses his fight. The New York Supreme Court decides that the Anti-Saloon League as an active political organization is liable to the examinations imposed upon all similar bodies. Records of moneys received and expended must be shown upon official demand.

The veil will now be lifted from the "twenty-six thousand dollar mystery." If Mr. Anderson notes a lessening enthusiasm for his works he may find an explanation in an observation of Confucius: "When an archer misses the centre of the target he turns around and looks for the cause of failure within himself."

RUTH LOVE 'NOTES' TO BE READ

Girl to Tell in Boston American Monday How Bambino Played the Sheik

New York, March 16.—Another twenty-four hours have passed and still no papers have been filed in the suit asking $50,000 damages which George Feinberg, attorney, insists he will bring against "Babe" Ruth on behalf of Dolores Dixon, shop girl, telephone operator and office clerk.

The girl has been found by the Boston American. Her thrilling story of how the "Sultan of Swat" played the Shiek will start in Monday's Boston American.

SAYS GIRL NEEDS REST.

Mr. Feinberg also promised on Wednesday that he would have Miss Dixon in his office Thursday or Friday for questioning by reporters. Now he says: "Miss Dixon has left town. Her condition at present is such that rest and quiet is absolutely necessary, the doctors say. She will be away about ten days. Her nerves are overtaxed because of this affair. I cannot reveal her present whereabouts."

Feinberg said that "My little golf girl" and "My little watch charm,"

REPRISAL PLOT IN IRELAND REVEALED

By DANIEL O'CONNELL.

Dublin, March 16.—A national plot for assassination reprisals by Republicans if the Free State continues to execute prisoners has been revealed by a document seized by Free State troops, it was learned today.

Detailed plans for assassination and incendiarism were contained in the paper. Homes of many Free State officials, both high and low, were ordered burned.

The document gives fourteen classes of "enemies" to be shot by Republicans on sight. They include members of the Dail Eireann, members of the Senate, army officers, judges, State solicitors, detectives and secret service agents, members of firing squads, publishers hostile

GIRL MODEL IN FEAR OF DEATH

Found Slain in Ransacked Flat, Her Will Tells of Premonition

New York, March 16.—A will drawn recently by Miss Dorothy Keenan, hinting at fear for her life, was taken today by the police as further proof that the artists' model, whose body was found with an empty chloroform bottle in her fashionable apartment on West Fifty-seventh street, had been slain and robbed of her jewels.

In her will, Miss Keenan, known as Dorothy King, gave the address on West 101st street of her mother, Mrs. Annie Keenan and leaves all her property to her.

"If I can locate the man who drew this will I may be able to find some motive for the murder," said Inspector Coughlin. "I believe that the person who drew the will was taken into the confidence of the dead woman.

"She, no doubt, told him why she had inserted the clause 'believing that something unforeseen might happen to me.' She knew she had enemies apparently. A lawyer evidently drew the will and he can give us a line on her mental state when she asked him to make it. We hope that whoever drew the will will come forward and tell us about it."

POLICE AWAIT AUTOPSY.

Coughlin, who announced he would await an autopsy before offcially pronouncing the case one of murder, said he had learned Miss Keenan had spent a week at Atlantic City before returning to this city last Friday.

The police arrested on a charge of carrying weapons without a permit Alberte Guimares, 30 years old, of Boston, who admitted acquaintance with several persons identified with the $500,000 jewel robbery of Mrs. C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf of Buffalo, and who is said by the police to have been a close friend of Miss Keenan's and to have been with her Sunday night.

The body of the woman was found in the boudoir of her studio apartment at No. 144 West Fifty-seventh street, where she had been living for

SENIOR AT TUFTS HAS VANISHED

E. O. Sampson of Swampscott Writes Parents and Sweetheart He is Going Away

Edward O. Sampson of Swampscott, senior at Tufts Engineering School, has disappeared, leaving parents, fiancee, college authorities and fraternity brothers in mystified wonder.

Search is being made for him afloat and ashore. He wrote his mother, Mrs. George E. Sampson of No. 46 Burrill street, Swampscott, that he was going to sea Monday night.

He wrote his sweetheart, Miss Grace Kennedy of No. 103 Pearson road, Somerville, that he had "gone and done it."

He wrote his fraternity president, Allan Grant, that he never would see Grant again.

He disappeared a few hours after a meeting of his chapter of Beta Tau fraternity, called at the chapter house to ask Sampson to resign as house steward because the table was running behind financially.

ACCOUNTS STRAIGHT.

But the fraternity brothers emphatically say that this was a matter of management alone and that there is nothing wrong with Sampson's accounts.

They cannot believe that being asked to let some other member run the house table would cause Sampson to pack up and disappear.

His sweetheart had asked him recently why he was worried. She had noticed it. He told her: "You wouldn't understand."

She firmly believes that he is not gone to sea, but is in Boston or nearby; also that he will surely come back to her.

SEEMED WORRIED.

He was all right in his studies, Prof. Edwin Rollins, acting dean of Tufts Engineering School in West Somerville, said today that his study marks were good, that there was no known reason for the disappearance and that, if Sampson returns within three weeks, he could still make up his lessons and be graduated in June.

Sampson is twenty years old. His father works in Lynn postoffice. The boy had been happy, so far as his

Pay Raise Demand by Mill Workers

At Fall River today the Textile Council made a demand upon the owners of the 111 cotton mills in that city for an increase of 15 per cent. in wages. The Council represents the six shop craft unions in the Fall River cotton milling industry. The demand at Fall River is the first gun in a battle which will be fought in every textile centre in New England, according to union leaders.

The agitation, they say, arises from a determination on the part of the workers to recover a substantial portion of the 22½ per cent. cut in wages, to which they peaceably submitted in the industrial depression late in 1920 and early in 1921.

At New York today, President McMahon of the United Textile Workers of America, announced that Sunday he would call a conference of workers and manufacturers in Fall River.

"If the manufacturers refuse to meet our representatives, I will immediately consider the calling of a strike," he said. "I have been empowered by the executive council of the workers to act as I see fit in the Fall River situation."

At Lawrence the twelve locals of the United Textile Workers of H., Pawtucket, R. I., and smaller wage demand, and National Organizer Francis J. Gorman said to-

SIMMONS GIRLS FIND BODY IN RIVER

Girls attending Simmons College of Domestic Science found the body of a man floating in Muddy River in the Fenway near the college today.

Preliminary examination of the body failed to explain the mystery of death, whether it was due to accident, suicide or foul play.

Description of the body and clothing includes:

Middle age, 5 feet 7 inches tall, 175 pounds weight, dark gray overcoat, blue suit, gray flannel shirt, blue drawers, tan shoes, blue overalls.

A desperate effort to save the life of Nicola Sacco, hunger striker, was made today by the men who are seeking to send him to the electric chair for the murder fo a paymaster and his guard in South Braintree.

District Attorney Harold Williams of Norfolk County and the former prosecutor, Fred G. Katzman, argued with Judge Webster R. Thayer to send him to a hospital where he might be forcibly fed.

This motion was made in the judge's lobby while a crowded court waited impatiently for arguments to begin on the question of a new trial for Sacco and his companion.

COURT REFUSES TO STOP HUNGER STRIKE OF SLAYER SACCO

Bartolomeo Vanzetti, likewise convicted of murder in the first degree.

WIFE OPPOSES PLAN.

Counsel for the defence conferred with Mrs. Rose Sacco, the convicted man's wife. She was opposed to the suggestion. Lawyers for both sides tried to influence her to change her mind.

Sacco did not appear in court.

Judge Thayer refused to issue an order to transfer Sacco to a hospital. He asserted this was a question which must be decided by Mrs. Sacco and the counsel for the defence.

A request was made to her to agree that her husband should be sent to an insane asylum, not as an insane patient, but so that his hunger strike could be defeated.

She demurred. This, she said, would be unfair to Sacco as he might be kept in the institution for an indefinite period.

VISITED BY ALIENISTS.

A proposition was then made that he be sent for two weeks in order that his strength might be built up by forcible feeding so that he might appear in court.

There was a lengthy conference on this issue. Mrs. Sacco had not changed her determination at a late hour today.

It became known that two prominent alienists had examined Sacco secretly in his cell during the past few hours.

It was unofficially reported that they had pronounced him sane, although in a highly disturbed mental and nervous state.

Sacco, entering his thirtieth day of fast, told jail officials he was too weak to stand the ordeal of the court chamber.

But Dr. Arthur, jail physician, after an examination of Sacco, declared he was ready to testify before Judge Webster R. Thayer that the defendant could appear in court long enough to take the witness stand.

The doctor does not believe Sacco could stay through the session.

Sacco's assertion he would not appear added a new legal complication to the case. Lengthy argument was held in the judge's lobby whether Sacco's petition could be postponed and the hearing proceed on Vanzetti's appeal. There was possibility that another adjournment might be taken.

Sacco's stubbornness bids fair to defeat the aims of his counsel and friends. There is strong likelihood his action may prevent a decision on his request for a new trial. His grim determination to continue his hunger strike may spoil the chances of his friend Vanzetti. The legal entanglements due to Sacco's action were so involved that even the attorneys were confused at times.

ARMED GUARDS ON DUTY.

Intense interest marked the resumption of the hearing. Fully 500 persons, mostly Italians, were gathered about the Court House and the jail, five minutes away.

Arthur D. Hill

Armed guards barred the entrances. All persons seeking admission were subjected to a search for concealed weapons. As soon as the seats were filled all others were stopped from entering.

Vanzetti appeared in court a few minutes before 10 o'clock, the hour of opening. He stalked stolidly down the aisle to the prisoner's dock, handcuffed to a deputy from Charlestown prison.

The accused murderer gave no sign of emotion until he came abreast of Sacco's little son. He stopped short. Tears glistened in his eyes. He patted the child on the head and whispered something in Italian. Mrs. Sacco bowed her head. The chamber was as still as death.

Great surprise was occasioned by the appearance of two new attorneys for the defence. They are Arthur D. Hill, former corporation counsel of Boston under Mayor Peters, and William G. Thompson, a member of the Boston Bar Association Grievance Committee.

Neither they nor Fred A. Moore, Jeremiah J., or Thomas F. McAnarney, the original defence counsel, would offer any comment as to the part they would take.

Rumors of all sorts were current as Mr. Thompson and Mr. Hill entered. Their injection into the case had been kept a secret.

The case assumed international proportions again today. Cable dispatches from Rome state that Premier Mussolini has cabled Ambassador Gaetani at Washington "to study, if possible, the friendly intervention of the American government in the case Sacco-Vanzetti."

Sacco has lost twenty-two pounds since he began his hunger strike on February 15. He now weighs 125 pounds. His pulse dropped two points in twenty-four hours, registering 56 today as against 58 on Tuesday and Wednesday. His temperature was 96; blood pressure 72.60 as against 80 on Tuesday and respiration sub-normal.

Sub-normal pulse and temperature are considered graver than super-temperature and pulse. They denote slow dissolution. Sacco's condition since Tuesday shows that death has gripped him. Dr. Worthington denied that he fixed any time for Sacco's end from starvation. He said it is impossible to estimate how long the patient may linger.

EVA FONTAINE DODGED N. Y. DETECTIVES

New York, March 16. (By International News Service).—Even Burrows Fontaine did not keep her engagement to dance last night at the Little Club, just off the Great White Way. Patrons were disappointed. So were Sheriff George Brown of Rickland County and four detectives who had a warrant for Miss Fontaine's arrest on a charge of perjury growing out of her $1,000,000 suit against Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, who, she alleges, was the father of her son.

At 2 a. m. the dancer had not appeared and Brown called in his sleuths and gave up the siege. He said he would make no further search for her until he saw whether she and her mother, also indicted for perjury, surrendered to court at Nyack.

the last eighteen months under the name of Dorothy King.

A small bottle labeled chloroform lay on the floor, drawers of the bureau had been ransacked, and jewelry the girl was known to possess was missing. This led the police to believe that robbery was the motive for the crime.

The police today were seeking for two young men who had escorted the model to her apartment shortly after midnight Thursday.

Guimares, who has been living at the Embassy Hotel, is known to have been with Miss King at eleven o'clock Wednesday morning. He was not, however, one of the men who escorted her home some twelve hours later.

Guimares later was arrested on a charge of violating the State law against carrying weapons without a permit, after the police had discovered an automatic pistol and a round of cartridges in his valise at his hotel.

INVOLVED WITH HUB FIRM.

Detectives said that Guimares was involved with McLaughlin & Company, Boston stock brokers, members of which were indicted in that city in connection with the sale of stock, more than a year ago. He told them, he said, that he had known Miss Kiernan for about eighteen months and saw her last on Wednesday when she visited him at the Hotel Embassy.

Guimares also was said to have told that he knew several persons who figured in the New Year's Eve party which culminated in the drugging of Mrs. C. P. Hugo Schoellkopf, who was robbed of jewels valued at $500,000.

ESCORTS HID FACES.

Ella Bradford, the negro maid, found the body of her mistress, clad in her night garments lying across the bed at noon Thursday. The maid lived at home.

Police learned from John Thomas, the elevator operator, that Miss Kiernan's escorts Thursday morning concealed their features by turning up their coat collars as they entered the elevator. Thomas said that one of the men had left Miss King's rooms after remaining there about forty-five minutes. Thomas declared that he did not know when the second man came away from the apartment.

Miss Bradford, the maid, said she had last seen the young woman alive at seven o'clock Wednesday night, at which time she helped the girl dress for a dinner party. At that time Miss King was wearing a diamond and sapphire bracelet, a 2½-karat diamond ring, a pearl ring and a lavaliere containing a pear-shaped sapphire. None of these pieces of jewelry were found.

Detectives spent the night questioning the model's mother and two brothers, the colored maid, the negro elevator attendants and other witnesses in the apartment house. Miss Kiernan had been employed as a clothing model and was known as "The best dressed girl on West Fifty-seventh street."

Both of the escorts were said by neighbors to have been frequent callers at the girl's flat.

TRAP 6 MORE IN CRUSADE IN LYNN

Six defendants caught in raids by the new Lynn vice squad were held in $300 for trial March 22 in Lynn Court today. The raids bring the total to eight since the Interchurch Union of Lynn threatened to clean up the city by a zoning system.

Two women were arrested. Mary Rocco, of No. 13 Neptune court, and Stella A. Nisciewicz. The latter was arrested with her husband William at their dry goods store at No. 24 River street. A quantity of liquor was found.

William J. Scanlon and Joseph L. Baum were arrested at their pool room, No. 943 Western avenue. Carl E. Hines was arrested in his home at No. 66 Light street, where a fifteen-gallon still and two gallons of moonshine were found.

PLUNGES 3 STORIES FROM FIRE ESCAPE

Joseph Chassion, fifty years old, married, of No. 34 Church street, Dorchester, fell three stories, when a fire escape on which he was working at No. 48 Rutland street, South End collapsed. He was removed to the City Hospital with broken right arm and leg. He had been at work polishing furniture.

WRATH OF IRISH REBELS DEFIED BY GIRL

Dublin, March 16.—Another striking instance of the heroism of the population in the face of the promiscuous sabtoage by the Republicans against the railroads ocurred today.

A farmer's daughter, finding the rails had ben torn up at the approach to a bridge over a deep gorge between Ballina and Dublin, flagged a train conveying a number of wounded Free State troops and civilian passengers. The train was stopped within a yard of the abyss.

The girl, by her action, deliberately defied the possible dire consequences of thwarting the plans of the Republicans.

POISON CLEW IN DEATH OF 2 SISTERS

Chicago, March 16.—Finding of a powerful poison in a bottle of medicine, believed by a coroner's chemist to have caused the death of two sisters, Mary F. Cummings, 30, and Anna Cummings, 35, within a month, today started police on an inquiry that contemplated exhumation of the younger sister's body.

After questioning numerous persons police said they could find no motive for substitution of poison for part of the original contents of the bottle.

FIREMAN SAVES 3 IN PEABODY BLAZE

Chester Carlin, a Peabody fireman, figured as the hero in the rescue of a mother, her newborn babe and a six-year-old daughter from a burning building and protecting them from injury, although sustaining severe burns himself, in his dash down a flame-swept stairway. Carlin's clothing was flaming when he reached the street and bystanders rolled him in snow to save him.

Carlin, off duty, was on his way home, when he saw the store of Harris Paraska, at No. 31 Harris street, was all ablaze. The tenement above was occupied by the family of Arestes Paraskasopolis, and although flames filled the stairway, Carlin dashed up, finding Mrs. Paraskasopolis in bed with her infant and a girl of six cowering in terror in the kitchen.

to the Republican movement and newspaper editors.

The houses of all persons assassinated were to be destroyed.

An ammunition dump, established by Republicans, was found near Kimmage Manor. Twelve men were arrested.

A Free State soldier was killed here during the night in a fusillade of firing by a band of armed men.

Serious trouble is anticipated tomorrow (St. Patrick's Day) over the attempt to hold the prize fight between "Battling" Siki, and Mike McTigue. Republicans, who are said to have acted upon order from De Valera, ordered the fight called off, meanwhile commanding that all places of public amusement be closed.

Scala Theatre, where the fight is to be staged, was placed under guard of Free State troops. All the doors were barred to prevent Republicans from entering and placing time bombs beneath the floor.

The promoters, supported by the Free State government, said the fight would be held as advertised despite the Republican order for "National mourning for Irish dead on St. Patrick's Day."

IN CAIRO lives a doctor named Athanasius, a Copt, who says he is the descendant and heir of Tut-Ankh-Amen. The doctor isn't joking. He has papyri to prove his descent, and he is going to fight for the property stolen from his ancestor's tomb.

IT ISN'T likely the Copt gentleman will get the property. But his descent makes "ancient lineages" look modern. Voltaire said the oldest title of nobility in all Europe was inherited from one of the bandits that settled the marshlands of Venice.

England's elect date back only to William the Conqueror, and our people that depend on dead relations for their respectability are content with Plymouth Rock and the Mayflower.

AN AGITATED English official, Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary for Air, warns England that France is immeasurably her superior in her equipment for air fighting. A while ago England would have said, "If our dear ally, France, has the air machines, we need not worry. Are we not brothers?" Now England is worried, precisely because her former "dear ally, France," has the machines that England hasn't got. France says to England, diplomatically between the lines, "Mind your business, leave me to mine. Any trouble with me will come through the air."

NAPOLEON GAZED across the channel, vainly waiting for a wind to help him invade England. Tomorrow morning at 8 France could declare war on England and destroy London by tomorrow noon.

England is an island no longer. The air is the ocean, and just now, not Britannia, but France, rules the air waves.

However, flowers before long, and grass will be growing, inevitably, over all of us. Nevertheless, we go ahead with our little plans as though we were to live forever.

EUROPE EXPECTS a settlement, temporary at least, of the Ruhr problem. Germany will make certain offers, and Germany's big men, led by Stinnes, will guarantee the offers. That's the plan. Whether or not it will work remains to be seen.

C. R. CRANE, once Minister to China, well known American, has seen both Lenin and Trotzky, and reports both incurably ill.

Lenin is near death. Trotzky has some incurable disease that confines him to his bed for long periods.

If both these men should go, what would happen in great Russia? The huge nation would offer to some enterprising militarist the opportunity that France offered to Napoleon when the Revolution was tired out and the pale-faced, black-haired little Corsican changed himself from Consul to Emperor.

LAWYER'S WIFE IS ADMITTED TO BAR

Irene G. Werbner

Mrs. Irene Gediman Werbner, popular alumna of Boston University Law School, class of 1921, is receiving congratulations of her many friends upon her admission to the Massachusetts bar. Mrs. Werbner is at present engaged in social work with the Federated Jewish Charities of Boston. She is the wife of Mr. Louis Werbner, a practicing attorney of Boston.

GIRL SPURNS $30,000 TO MARRY

MRS. EDYTHE GILLESPIE

When it came to deciding between a $30,000 inheritance and being married to the man of her choice against parental opposition, Edythe Horne, of No. 228 Main street, Malden, cast all thoughts of money to the winds, and now she is Mrs. Charles A. Gillespie.

Mrs. Gillespie was first married, she said, several years ago to Charles A. Horne. The match was of her parents' making, and the couple were not happy. Two years ago she secured a divorce and returned to the home of her mother, Mrs. Nettie E. Webb in Malden. When Mr. Gillespie appeared as a suitor, Mrs. Webb frowned on the match. She would not give her consent, and intimated to her daughter that if she married young Gillespie she would not share in her father's estate.

Mrs. Horne would not give up her suitor, however, and the couple slipped away to be married by Justice of the Peace Cahalan. Later they will be married by religious ceremony.

Mrs. Gillespie is treasurer of the Christensen School of Music and is an accomplished musician. Her husband is in business in New York and Philadelphia.

WAGE DEMAND BY MILL MEN

day that the vote would be nearly unanimous in favor.

At New Bedford, Manchester, N. H., Pawtucket, R. I. and smaller mill towns scattered throughout New England union leaders are preparing to follow the example of Fall River and Lawrence, if the unions in those cities show fight.

At Fall River the Cotton Manufacturers' Association is preparing to resist the demand of the operatives, according to a statement today. Officers of the association said today that the owners of the mills were prepared to shut down their mills, rather than increase wages on such short notice.

They claim they are booked ahead on orders based on the present wages, and if they cannot fill them they would rather close their mills than to run at a loss.

There are 36,000 operatives in the Fall River mills, about one-half of whom are members of one or another of the unions connected with the Textile Council. Council leaders say they will have the support of the unorganized workers in this effort to raise wages, as they always have in the past.

Anticipating a strike, Mayor Talbot of Fall River has asked the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation to intervene and is making arrangements to meet strike conditions locally.

In Lawrence, where there are about 35,000 operatives in the cotton, woolen and worsted industries, about one-fourth of them are affiliated with the United Textile Workers of America.

About the same number belong to the One Big Union and the rest are not affiliated with any union. Organizer Gorman said today the United Textile Workers, who are leading the movement for an increase of wages in Lawrence, will have the support of the One Big Union and the unorganized workers.

He expects to have the votes of the twelve locals before the first of next week, and will immediately place their demands before the mill owners. It is thought that some of the unions will not meet before next Sunday.

James Tansey, president of the American Federation of Textile Operatives, is working with Secretary Thomas Goodwin of the Fall River Textile Council in preparation for a strike in that city if the Manufacturers' Association refuse their demands. The Federation has 7,000 members in the Fall River mills, embracing some of the most important crafts.

Secretary Charles E. Smith of the Manufacturers' Association is handling the manufacturers' end of the controversy. He called a meeting of the executive committee today, on receipt of the Council's demand, and intimated that he might have an important announcement to make later.

It is admitted by textile manufacturers everywhere that business is booming in New England mills. In Lawrence some of the mills are working overtime and there is a serious shortage of woman operatives.

Textile leaders were in Washington during the session of Congress just adjourned, working for a repeal of the immigration laws, claiming they needed help to operate their mills and that the labor supply was so low in the United State it could not meet the demand.

The manufacturers claim, however, that they cannot raise wages while making cloth that has been sold at prices based on the present wage scales.

were some of the terms of endearment used by the "King of Swat."

Hyman Bushel, Ruth's attorney, made indignant protest when he heard Feinberg's statement. He said the allegations were "pure bunk and faking."

Feinberg countered with the statement that he has "conclusive evidence of the relations between Ruth and Miss Dixon," and has witnesses that knew of such relations. He further asserted he had a letter written by Ruth to the girl telling of their relations. He added that the ball player had given Miss Dixon sums of money and trinkets of little value.

PUZZLED BY ABDUCTION STORY

Police Fail to Find Evidence of Gun in Chelmsford Girl's Charge

Lowell, March 16.—A piece of grimy paper floated down on the heads of two small boys playing before a Middesex street lodging house. It was a note that read:

"I am a girl being detained against my will. In God's name help me. Notify police."

The youngsters—Arthur Michaud, of No. 33 Howard street, and Raymond Simard, of No. 28 Howard street—could not read. A larger boy told a policeman.

Patrolmen McCann and McCreevey questioned Magog Avedesian, the proprietor.

He denied the presence of a girl in the house. The police went to an upper floor. They burst open the door of the room occupied by William J. Allard, twenty.

FIND FOOTPRINTS.

From under the bed rolled a half hysterical girl. She was Blanche R. Richardson of Chelmsford. She is sixteen and large for her age.

Five miles away searchers, armed with lanterns and searchlights, spread out fan-shape over the snowy waste, seeking trace of the girl who had left her home early in the day to go snow shoeing.

Tracks were found. The posse followed the trail of the snow shoes more than a mile. A man's footprints were picked up. The searchers saw where the girl had tried to run. The imprint of her body showed where she had fallen. Nearby were indisputable signs of a struggle.

The police were called. They notified the anxious parents not to worry. The girl was safe.

NO GUN FOUND.

"I was out snowshoeing," she told police. "A man overtook me. He forced me to march ahead of him to Lowell. He had a revolver. He kept this at my back all the way. I was afraid he would kill me."

The police are puzzled, for when they searched Allard's room they could find no gun. They did find a hunting knife with a long, sharp blade.

The authorities are further mystified by the fact that the girl, if her story is correct, had to pass through a populous section, the streets of which were well filled with people at the time.

Neither can the investigating officers understand how a girl in her position would have the forethought to fold her note four times and weight it down with a bone hairpin, thrust through it pin fashion.

BOTH ARE HELD.

Allard, said to be a former Lyman School inmate, was arraigned in District Court. He was charged with assault with intent to commit a serious crime. His case was continued one week. He is being held in $5,000 bail and $500 for possession of the knife.

Abedesian was also arraigned on a charge of having a similar knife. He was held in $500 for one week.

CONVICT PAIR OF INTENT TO SLAY

Salem, March 16.—A sealed verdict of guilty was delivered to Judge Hammond in Superior Court today by the jury in the cases against George Marganian and wife charged with assault with intent to murder Peter Ogassian. They were held each in $10,000 for sentence.

Last Summer, on a pretext of paying money owed to Ogassian, the woman invited him to a secluded spot where someone had dug a hole for burial purposes. The husband pounced upon Ogassian and, assisted by the wife they battered him with stones and left him for dead in the hole, evidence at the trial showed. After several weeks in a hospital he recovered.

FISH MEN LOSE LAST APPEAL

Seventeen Convicted Here as Wartime Profiteers to Be Resentenced

The seventeen defendants in the famous "fish trust" cases lost their last appeal today. The full bench of the Supreme Court denied their petition for a reargument.

Attorney-General Jay R. Benton announced that he would move for sentence at once. He declared his intention of communicating with Judge Sanderson today to ask him to set a date for his appearance in Boston so arrangements could be made without delay to have the defendants in court.

The men were found guilty April 17, 1919, of conspiracy to raise the price of fish in war time and creating a monopoly of the fish business in Boston and New England.

The convicted men are: F. Monroe Dyer, Joshua Paine, Joseph A. Rich, Ernest A. James, Albert E. Watts, Ephriam N. Cook, John Burns, Jr., William F. McKeon, Herbert A. Rich, Winfield S. Kendrick, Herbert F. Phillips, William E. Curran, Simeon Atwood, Jr., Alvin G. Baker, Lewis S. Goodspeed, Fred G. Phillips and William R. Cox.

The "fish trust" cases attracted widespread attention. Henry C. Attwill, while attorney general, and former District Attorney A. C. Webber prosecuted the charges. Henry F. Hurlburt defended the accused. In all there were thirty men indicted.

13 ACQUITTED.

Those acquitted were: Arthur Wainwright, Galen L. Stone, Frederick C. Dumaine of the Amoskeag mills, Samuel F. McIntire, John Newbury, Charles Foley, Harrison H. Sawyer, William Stoddard, Byron M. McGrath, Edward J. Cosgrove, Walter K. Smith, Harvey G. Daley and Robert Campbell.

Dyer, president of the Bay State Fishing Company, Paine, Rich, Jones and Burns, were sentenced on July 9, 1919, to serve one year in jail and pay fines of $1,000 each.

The other defendants were given sentences of six months in jail and fines of $500 each.

Presumably Judge Sanderson will reimpose the sentences he pronounced when the jury found the defendants guilty.

BUILT FISH PIER.

Dyer, characterized as "the brains" of the Bay State Fishing Company promotion, which led to construction of the $3,000,000 fish pier in South Boston, was a New York stock broker. He is alleged to have made a fortune through the manipulation of stock and boosting of fish prices.

The other defendants are all men widely known in business and social circles. The prisoners may safely be said to be the most distinguished ever convicted of a criminal offence in this city.

'DREAM MOTHER' LOSES IN SUIT FOR DIVORCE

London, March 16. (By International News Service.)—A verdict in favor of the plaintiff was rendered today in the divorce action brought by the Honorable John Hugo Russell, son of Lord Ampthill, against his young wife, Christabel Hart Russell.

This was the second suit brought by Russell. In the first action three co-respondents were named. Two were exonerated, but there was a question of doubt as to the guilt or innocence of the third. It is estimated that the two suits cost Russell more than $120,000. His parents are Lord and Lady Ampthill.

SEARCH LAND AND SEA FOR MISSING MAN

GRACE KENNEDY.

Search, afloat and ashore, is being made for Edward O. The notes are vague, but in two of them he said he was going on a sea voyage. His sweetheart,

TO BARE RULES OF "REDS" AT FOSTER TRIAL

St. Joseph, Mich., March 16.—(By Associated Press)—With testimony of Sheriff George Bridgeman still incomplete, the trial of William Z. Foster, charged with criminal syndicalism, entered the last day of its first week today with taking of evidence well under way.

Bridgeman will be followed by Maurice Wolff and Jacob Spolansky, Federal agents, who assisted him last August in raiding the Communist party convention in the dunes near here, as a result of which Foster and seventy-five others were charged with violation of the Michigan law against syndicalists' activities.

Chief interest in today's session centred in the introduction of the "regulations of ground committee," found among the evidence dug up at the convention scene from two buried barrels.

The regulations, the State maintains, shows the delegates themselves recognized the illegal status of their activities and took elaborate precautions against discovery.

Delegates to the convention apparently enjoyed little freedom. They could not leave the grounds without a pass, were compelled to rise at 6 A. M., and retire at 10 P. M., could not talk to strangers, send messages or mail letters, were not allowed to call each other by their own names, aliases being used instead; could not keep "incriminating documents" in their possession over night, could bathe only at specified hours, and were required to wear bathing suits then.

Besides the rules of this committee there was a committee of stewards to enforce them. The stewards, according to another document produced by the State, had each sleeping room and its occupant numbered, saw that those turned over their incriminating papers and went to bed at the proper time at night and got them up at six in the morning.

HOUSE RETURNED TO BANKER'S WIFE

Judge McLaughlin of the Superior Court has ordered the Winchester National Bank to give up and cancel a deed of house and land on Grove street, Winchester, executed by Mrs. Jennie F. Foster, widow of Edward S. Foster, president of the bank, after it was discovered that Foster was indebted to the bank in the sum of $101,000 for overdrafts. Judge McLaughlin finds that the deed of Mrs. Foster was not given of her free will.

"Monday Noon.

Dear Mother—Do not expect me home this week-end or any more week-ends, because I am aboard ship and it is leaving tonight. I am O. K. and will write again when possible and let you know all about it. Do not try to look for me because I can take care of myself. With love,

GIRL BARES BLASTED ROMANCE

Clara Tardiff, Who Took Poison, Tells How Her Plans Went Awry

Clara Tardiff is loyal to "her man."

Loyal, even though he broke her heart when he withdrew the promise to make her his wife. And in the face of the fact that she tottered on the eternal brink, her system flooded with poison, after the passing of "my man" from her life had left only the shadows to be faced.

At City Hospital today Clara told of her life. How she was married at fourteen to a man twenty years her senior, how she was divorced, and then how "the other man" came into her life."

But loyal Clara would not tell the name of the man whose cooling affections caused her to swallow poison at her home, No. 19 Dixwell street, Jamaica Plain.

"I can't hurt him. I will never tell his name. We planned to get married and I was happy. Then one night he told me our plans were not to be realized. I suppose, though," with a weak smile, "we can't make ourselves love people if it is not in us."

NOTHING BUT SHADOWS.

"Then I took the poison. I could see nothing but the shadows before me. And, God knows, I have looked for happiness long enough. I was married when I was only fourteen. I was an orphan. I thought I would make my husband happy, even though he was thirty-four.

"But the marriage was a failure. My husband was a good man, but our viewpoints on life were too different. It was the old story of Spring and Autumn. Gradually we drifted apart. Then he got a divorce. Our son was given him by the court.

"Alone, I came to Boston and obtained work. Then I met 'the other man,' as you call him; 'my man,' as I call him. He is about my age. He has a nice family and we were together a great deal. I loved him and —I thought he loved me. Perhaps he thought the same for awhile.

"We planned. The little home and all that went with it. I built my castles high then. But it was not to be. He came to my house one night, a short time ago, and told me it was all over between us.

TRULY SORRY.

"When he went away I guess I went crazy. I wanted to die. I had lost 'my man' and there was nothing else in life for me, I thought. So I took the poison. I almost choked taking it but I was determined to die. But I couldn't stand the burning pain. I screamed and then I guess I fainted.

"They tell me some of the neighbors heard me cry and came in.

"That is all there is to the story. Soon I hope to get out of the hospital. Where will I go? Back to work, I suppose. Yes, I am truly sorry I tried to die. Now I want to live. Some day I may find happiness. Some day those castles I built may become real.

"But no one will ever know the name of the man whom I will always call 'my man.'"

HARDING EAGER FOR DEEP-SEA FISHING TRIP

Miami, Fla., March 16.—Refreshed from a night's rest ashore in the Cocolobo Cay Club, at Cocolobo Cay, an island some twenty-five miles south of here, President Harding and his fishing party today awaited the calming of choppy seas before venturing into the open Atlantic for a taste of barracuda fishing.

The presidential party arrived at the island yesterday after a round of golf on the Flamingo course, while Mrs. Harding spent her first night ashore in more than a week, with her hostess, Mrs. Edward B. McLean, in a cottage near the Flamingo Hotel.

Besides being prepared for the barracuda, President Harding was anxious to take a fling at the amberjack and then kingfish as soon as conditions on the water would permit.

Cut off from the main line by Biscayne Bay, with a radio the only means of communication, the President is enjoying more seclusion than at any time since his vacation began.

LINER'S DOCTOR CURES 3 BY RADIO AID

Dr. Paul F. Sondern, surgeon of the Steamship George Washington of the United States Lines set a new record in long-distance medical treatment by radio on the last round trip of his vessel across the Atlantic.

The most serious case was an abscess which formed in the tear duct of one of the eyes of the lighthouse keeper at Cape Race, Newfoundland. The light was storm-bound. The station's operator broadcasted for medical advice. For three days Dr. Sondern, after getting radioed description of the case, directed treatment to be given with the scanty medical supplies at the light. Spread of the abscess was allayed.

On the same outward trip Dr. Sondern prescribed successfully by radio for a seaman on the steamship Scottish Grath, who was apparently paralyzed by lack of circulation in his legs.

On the return run Dr. Sondern directed by radio a cold-pack treatment for a seaman on steamship Editor. The man recovered.

In addition, Dr. Sondern had patients to handle on the George Washington, including successful receptions to the stork each way.

200 POISONED, 27 KILLED, BY CHINESE COOKS

Shanghai, March 16 (By the Associated Press).—Two cooks, recently discharged, were responsible for the deaths of twenty-seven students and teachers at the normal school at Hang Chow as the result of eating rice saturated with poison.

Chemists who examined what rice was left said enough poison had been placed there to wipe out the entire community.

One of the cooks testified his fellow conspirator stole a bottle containing a white powder from the chemical laboratory and dumped the entire content into the rice pot.

Following the serving of the rice 200 students and fifty teachers became ill. Ten are still in a serious condition.

Pleasant Office Is First Concern of Business Girls

New York, March 16.—Just what sways a business girl in her choice of a position?

This old question has at last been definitely settled through questioning of more than 5,000 girls by the National Employment Exchange. Here is the result:

Forty per cent. were interested mainly in the environment of the position—the appearance of the office, the disposition of the employer and the congeniality of their prospective associates.

Thirty per cent. were interested almost exclusively in the salary they would receive.

And less than one-third admitted they would be influenced by "Chances of advancement."

COURT ANNULS MARRIAGE OF PEGGY UDELL

Peggy Udell.

Baltimore, Md., March 16.—Peggy Udell and the Elkton marriage mill fared badly at the hands of the Maryland Court of Appeals, which ordered that the "pretended marriage" of the Ziegfeld chorus girl and John W. Montgomery, minor son of a wealthy New York family, be annulled.

The decision reversed the finding of Judge Wickes of the Circuit Court for Cecil County, before whom Montgomery's suit for divorce was tried early last Summer, and who ruled that the marriage was valid, ordering Montgomery to pay $50 a month alimony, counsel fees and court costs.

Young Montgomery, who had only recently left Tome Institute at the time of the elopement from Philadelphia to Elkton in January, 1922, is now at work in an Idaho lumber camp. He is said to have remitted alimony from his wages to his chorus girl bride.

Miss Udell, a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John F. Unertle, of Milwaukee, who adopted Udell as her name, left the stage at the close of last season's engagement and since has lived in Philadelphia.

REPORT CAPE CANAL MAY BE CLOSED

Reports that the owners of the Cape Cod Canal will abandon further efforts to keep it open, as a result of the failure of Congress to take definite action, were prevalent in semi-official circles today.

It is not believed that the owners of the canal will feel disposed to hold on until the next Congress convenes. A possibility that the State may take over the waterway is bitterly decried by citizens of Cape Cod. They feel that such action would mean enormous expense to the taxpayers.

DENOUNCE VISIT OF KING GEORGE TO POPE PIUS

Winnipeg, March 16.—The reported plan of King George to visit Pope Pius was denounced at a meeting of the Grand Lodge of Manitoba Orangemen.

A resolution, ordered forwarded to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, said that the King had been ill advised if he seriously considered calling on the Pope.

It was adopted after a London lodge had circulated every grand lodge in the world, asking them to protest against what is termed "an outrage upon the Protestant constitution and liberties of the English speaking nation."

The resolution set forth that under the bill of rights, "our crown is banned from holding any communion with the See or Church of Rome, and these are not the days in which constitutional safeguards ought to be flouted."

Worcester Mayor to Veto Increase of His Own Salary

Worcester, March 16.—Mayor Peter F. Sullivan will veto the order passed by the City Council, allowing an increase in the Mayor's salary. The present salary of the Mayor is $5,000 a year. The City Council is favorable to having special legislation enacted whereby the city charter may be amended and place the Mayor's salary at $7,500.

PLAN NEW JURY TO PROBE KU KLUX MURDERS

New Orleans, March 16—The State may move to obtain a new Grand Jury in Morehouse Parish and, through it, make a second attempt to obtain indictments on murder charges of those it believes responsible for the death of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard, according to T. Semmes Walmsley, Assistant Attorney-General, here today.

He indicated that at the same time the Attorney-General's office probably would file information against more than two score individuals whom, he said, had been linked with the Morehouse Parish crimes, on minor charges, such as lying in wait, assault and battery and deporting from the State.

The jury which has just heard evidence in the case has acquitted all involved.

Captain J. K. Skipwith, Exalted Cyclops of the Morehouse Klan, declared he was pleased with the verdict.

"The State has done its duty and I hope it is satisfied and will let the matter rest," he said.

RAIDERS FIND LIQUOR IN BARROOM SAFE

Springfield, March 16.—"Dry" raiders called in a locksmith to open the safe in the barroom of a local hotel kept by John W. Roache. They found whiskey and champagne behind the big steel doors. Roache was arrested.

GUNMAN'S GIRL NOT WANTED IN NEW YORK

Miss Mona Devore of Schenectady, twenty-three-year-old sweetheart of William J. Gray, Boston's "non-shooting" gunman, gave herself up to the Dudley street police station twenty-four hours after she had been arrested and released in connection with Gray's robberies. She had heard that the police of her home city wanted her.

The Boston police, however, refused to hold Miss Devore, since there was no complaint filed against her, nor any request from Schenectady to hold her.

ARMED PIRATE SHIP FROM HUB RAIDS RUM FLEET

EX-TRAWLER MOUNTS GUNS

Carries Crew of Sixty Roughnecks and Seizes Contraband at Will

A naval battle is impending between a fleet of armed rum running vessels off Block Island and the Gray Ghost, a pirating trawler out of Boston, which carries a bow-chaser and machine guns. This report comes from New York today.

The "Gray Ghost," thus nicknamed on account of its coat of battleship gray, has been making successful raids on the rum-running fleet, overpowering even the husky crews and carrying off thousands of cases of liquor valued at from $45 to $54 a case.

This pirate craft is a powerfully built steel trawler. It is said to be owned by three Boston men who are ostensibly in the insurance business with offices on a prominent Boston street.

They went into the rum pirating business with full preparations. They put aboard the trawler a crew of sixty as rough and ready huskies as could be assembled on any waterfront.

HAS FLEET NERVOUS.

But the bosses did not rely on fists alone. They had a one-pounder mounted in the bow of the "Gray Ghost" and machine guns on both sides aft.

With this battery the "Gray Ghost" could throw a one-pound shot through the hull of any rum-runner, or spray a shower of machine gun bullets across an enemy deck.

Thus equipped, the "Gray Ghost" started out to raid the rum-runners with a success that has the captains, agents and seamen of the contraband fleet at a point where cursing is futile.

The rum fleet, composed of fourteen to sixteen vessels, represents two competing New York syndicates.

CREWS ALL ARMED.

These organizations transport liquor from England and Scotland to St. Pierre, Miquelon, in tramp steamers. It is then loaded into fishing smacks of Gloucester type, which lay off Block Island and await buyers sent out by agents on shore.

The station of the rum-running fleet is some ten miles beyond the three-mile limit and ranges from Block Island westward to No Man's Land.

The rum runners carry crews of nine or ten men apiece, all armed with automatic pistols and sawed-off shot guns. They are able to repel any ordinary boarders, but have been powerless so far against the superior numbers and arms of the "Gray Ghost," which strikes quickly and gets away.

DARES NOT HOLLER.

One great advantage to the "Gray Ghost" is that the victims dare not appeal to either the American or British governments because they are in illegal business in the first place.

Of course, if a government vessel, like a revenue or coastguard cutter, came upon a rum runner and the "Gray Ghost" in pitched battle, even on the high seas, it might interfere and gather in all concerned.

One night early this week the "Gray Ghost" descended on the rum fleet, boarded a vessel and departed with 1,700 cases of liquor.

Since then the rum-running fleet has hoisted anchors and kept sails up, ready to dart away the moment the "Gray Ghost" or any other vessel appears that does not show secret signals known only to the fleet.

Agents of the rum fleet make their headquarters in one of the best hotels in Providence. One has to be thoroughly and "properly" introduced to an agent before he will talk liquor.

The fleet, outside of the piratical interference by the "Gray Ghost," runs into Rhode Island and Connecticut ports on orders from the vessels' agents.

The price list runs about thus:

Brand.	Price per Case.
Hunter Rye	$54
Dawson Scotch	$45
White Horse	$45

ARGUMENTS HEARD IN A. O. U. W. SUIT

Before the Supreme Court today arguments were begun in the case of William E. Delaney and others against the Massachusetts Grand Lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen. The suit is brought by 7,000 of the older members to prevent the Grand Lodge from increasing their dues. Today's arguments were on a point raised by the defesdants, that under the laws of Massachusetts no proceedings for litigation or receivership against a domestic fraternal benefit society can be maintained, except by the attorney-general at the instance of the insurance commissioner.

GRACE RUSSELL AND ZWEIFEL ARE MARRIED

You wouldn't think, to look at Fred Zweifel, that it was vanity that caused his downfall, but that's the case.

For the new Mrs. Zweifel was Miss Grace Russell, who plays the part of Vanity in the Ed Wynn show at the Colonial, "The Perfect Fool."

Mr. Zweifel, who is manager of the show, is now playing the role of the "Perfect Bridegroom." Ed himself was best man at the wedding, and Mrs. Wynn was matron of honor.

Mr. Zweifel is close onto sixty years old and claims he is able to make up his own mind by now. His bride is some thirty years his junior. She recently got a divorce from Winfield Scott Freeman, grand nephew of the famous General Winfield Scott and nephew of former United States Senator Calvin Bryce. Mrs. Zweifel is a daughter of the late Frank Hickey, the song writer.

9 SMALL LINES SEEK MILEAGE BOOK RIGHTS

Washington, March 17.—While Eastern Trunk line railroads are preparing to take into court the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission requiring them to sell interchangeable mileage after May 15, nine small railroads, which the commission exempted from the necessity of selling the mileage books, have applied for permission to do so.

Through the American Short Line Association, the Bamberger Electric Railroad, Charlotte Harbor & Northern, Electric Short Line Railway, Jamestown, Westfield & Northwestern, Salt Lake & Utah, Susquehanna & New York, and the Waterloo, Cedar Falls & Northern all petitioned the commission for necessary authority to install sale of the books at the 20 per cent. reduction trunk line roads have been ordered to make.

The petition asserted that the smaller lines would lose a large amount of passenger traffic if they fail to give the same rates and facilities to travelers that competing trunk lines give.

BELIEVE HUNTER EATEN BY WOLVES

Saskatoon, Sask., March 16.—Carl Lynn, World War veteran, one of the best known trappers in the North Country, is believed to have lost his life in a battle with timber wolves. Shreds of clothing and a gun belonging to Lynn, surrounded by six dead wolves, were found near Cree Lake, 200 miles north of Ile a La Crosse, but the hunter's body was missing.

Believe Americans Live Like Flies in Eternal Night

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, March 16.—A tribe so primitive that it believes Americans live on the bottom of the world and are therefore in darkness has been found in the mountain villages of the Daghestan by Dr. F. A. Golder of the Hoover Foundation.

These people, Dr. Golder said, think Americans do their plowing while walking upside down with oxen to whose horns candles are tied.

"They thought I arrived by way of a hole in the ground, the ladder to which is kept by the Czar of Moscow," Dr. Golder added.

JACK UP CAR TO GET BOY; ISN'T HURT

Traffic on the Newton-Auburndale line of the Middlesex and Boston Street Railway was held up for several hours while a wrecking crew worked to save a three-year-old boy who had been struck and hurled under the wheels.

John Edward Leforte, aged three, of No. 430 Pleasant street, Bemis, was playing at the corner of Pleasant and Bridge streets, Bemis. The lad ran in front of the car, it is said, the fender hitting him. The motorman saw John thrown under the car and applied the emergency brakes.

The body of the boy was seen under the forward truck. The wreckers from Waltham were hurried to the spot and they "jacked up" the car. John, frightened beyond words, but absolutely unharmed, was taken from under the car. Railway officials and civilians who saw the accident are unable to account for what they term "a miracle" in that the lad was not instantly killed.

DRIVER HURT WHEN HORSE RUNS AWAY

William Gibson of No. 32 Walden street, Cambridge, was seriously injured when the city wagon he was driving was struck by an auto truck on Massachusetts avenue, North Cambridge.

Gibson was thrown to the icy pavement when the horse bolted and sustained a possible fracture of the skull and a fractured leg. He is at the Cambridge City Hospital.

The frightened horse, which was dashing toward a crowd of women and children disembarking from a trolley, was stopped by Patrolman Parker J. Murphy after running about a quarter of a mile.

Have You Ever Tasted It?

Have you ever tasted real Ferris Bacon? Have you ever stopped to realize that this famous old-fashioned meat might possibly have the richness and depth of flavor that your hungry palate craves?

Ferris Bacon is probably the most carefully prepared food in the world. Only the first choice sides from finest corn-fed porkers are cured by our unhurried grandfather method and then smoked the old-fashioned way in the spicy smoke from green hickory wood.

Why not order some Ferris Bacon? The flavor has been famous for sixty years.

Spring's Coming

No matter what the temperature may be as you read these lines, no matter how deep the snow or thick the ice, we know that spring's close by because—(1) The income tax has reminded us that March is half gone, (2) The calendar shows us that Easter is only two weeks away, (3) The crystal glass cases in this Live Store are filled to overflowing with beautiful new spring merchandise.

In asserting that we are better prepared than ever before to serve the clothing needs of this community, we make use of an expression that's trite but true. And the reason it's true is because these Kennedy Stores are "Live Stores" in fact as well as in name.

Season by season, year by year, we grow in knowledge, in experience, in know-how and in volume of business. The natural consequence is that our service to the public constantly improves. As Coue would say: Day by day, in every way, we can serve you better and better.

Waste Coal Cost $1.56 a Ton to Produce

HERE IS BOSTON'S MOST PROLIFIC MURDERER—John Barleycorn—who since the first of this year has killed thirty men and women by poison and lent a new meaning to the phrase "death on the hip."

DEATH ON THE HIP

[illegible] surely the red lights of Boston are being blown [illegible] reform started by Volstead. The last of [illegible] are doomed. Those who said it [illegible] now say it has been done. The old joints have [illegible] run out of business. The brass rail is one with Tut-Ankh-Amen, the bungstarter is one with Tyre and Nineveh.

The license of the Marliave Cafe, historic boozery of the grand old wet days, has been suspended. In one fell swoop the police closed thirty of the booziest, wooziest cafes in town. Prohibition has won its fight in Boston at last. The red nose is doomed to extinction. Liquor is out.

It's easy to get a drink in Boston. But consider this list of thirty. Cut the list out. Paste it in your hat. And the next time you are invited to buy bootleg booze, take off your hat and read the list again. Beware of death on the hip.

'PEEPING TOM' CAUGHT, POLICE BELIEVE

Jeffrey J. Savoy, twenty-seven years old, of Main street, Canton, believed by the police to be the "Peeping Tom" that has annoyed Lynn residents, was arrested in the Lynn Y. M. C. A., charged with the larceny of an overcoat from John F. Stevens, of No. 1 Valerie's place.

The overcoat was on a chair nearby him, police say, and he was coolly reading a newspaper.

The police believe that he has made a habit of peeking into windows in order to get a "lay-out" of the house.

MILLION LOSS IN MONTREAL FIRE

Montreal, March 16.—Four hundred patients were safely removed from the Roman Catholic Home for Incurables when it was destroyed by fire. The patients were guided to safety by the heroic work of 80 attendants and as many Sisters of Providence.

Damage caused by the fire was estimated at $1,000,000.

The hospital was built in 1890 as a convent for the Sisters of the Precious Blood, but was found to be larger than their needs called for. In 1901 it was taken over by the Sisters of rPovidence, who have since operated it as a hospital. In 1910 the structure was considerably enlarged.

MITCHELL ESCAPES BY LEAP FROM PLANE

New York, March 16.—Brigadier-General William Mitchell, assistant chief of the United States Army Air Service, narrowly escaped death in a sensational airplane accident on Mitchell Flying Field.

Brig.-Gen. W. Mitchell

The landing gear of the plane in which he had been flying collapsed as it came to earth. General Mitchell used his knife in quickly cutting the straps that bound him to the pilot's seat and leaped to safety as the plane struck a rut. He rolled over several times on the ground. Although badly bruised, he was not seriously hurt.

Concealment of Huge Profits Perplexes Pennsylvania Companies

Following is the sixth instalment of a series of reports on [illegible] in the Pennsylvania anthra[illegible] fields showing that the operators have been foisting culm upon the public at the price of real coal, and have been curtailing deliberately the mining of coal so as to get cars for the culm, and at the same time save enormous sums by the cheap production from the culm banks.

Beaver Brook, Pa., March 16.—The people of the United States have been paying during this Winter $18 or more a ton for coal that costs only $1.56 in the car.

This fact becomes evident from figures, fully susceptible of proof, gained from confidential sources of information.

Contract miners get $2.40 a car, the cost for labor in this respect costing only 96 cents per ton. Adding 60 cents a ton for other production expenses and for running, cleaning and separating the coal brings the total cost per ton up to $1.56 per ton. This, of course, does not include taxes and depreciation.

EVEN PHILLAN KICKED.

These figures are obtained as a characteristic production cost as represented in the workings here of the Charles M. Dodson Company. This coal now being produced by this particular Dodson colliery is a part of the coal which the Massachusetts Fuel Administration declared the Dodson concern is exacting $12 and $13 a ton for at the mine.

The people of this section are calling attention to the fact that the United States government set up a Federal Fuel Administration partly, at least, to prevent gouging of the consumer. Coal was supposed to be sold at the Pennsylvania anthracite mines for slightly in excess of $8 per ton, but now the Pennsylvania Fuel Administration permits a maximum of $10 a ton to be charged, of which rate some of the companies have taken full advantage. When this coal reaches the public, after several profits are added, it brings $18 or more a ton.

NO CURB BY U. S.

In the minds of both mining company employes and of intelligent citizens, who are really conversant with the entire fuel situation, the working regulations of the various fuel bodies of the government are the best possible aids to the designs of the operators. It is freely admitted, as far as prices are concerned, that the operators could ask for no more liberal regulation and would not dream of asking higher prices if the matter were left entirely to their own discretion.

The profits are so enormous, it is generally admitted here, that the producing anthracite companies are perplexed as to how best to conceal them in their elaborate system of bookkeeping.

There are to be found independent operators having no financial connection with coal handling railroads who aver that high freight rates on anthracite are a natural sequel to railroad ownership of the big coal companies. Many of the largest mining companies have been content to sell coal at a comparatively low figure and make huge profits out of the freight charges on their own coal.

TAKES OVER 3RD CLASS MAIL HERE

Poor Service in Boston District Under Postmaster Baker Forces Radical Action

The railway mail service has been called to the assistance of the Boston postal district. Orders from Washington have turned over to the railway mail department the work of handling all outgoing third class mail from Boston.

Newspapers, magazines and other similar mail matter, listed as "third class" are to be immediately turned over to the railway mail men as soon as it is delivered at postoffices. It is expected that this change will be kept in operation until, at least, conditions in the Boston Postoffice return to normal.

According to postal men, this is the first time in the history of the local office that such a drastic step has been taken.

INSPECTORS IN CONTROL.

It is supposed, by the men, that the order was issued as a result of the recommendation of the two inspectors from Washington who have been investigating the Boston Postal District for several weeks. These inspectors at present are in virtual control of local postal affairs, exercising general supervision over all activities.

It was learned today that there is a rising feeling of dissatisfaction in many cities and towns in the district, against the reign of Postmaster Baker, and the men themselves admitted that a demand for separation from Boston is expected. Particularly in Stoneham, [illegible] Wollaston, Somerville, [illegible] and Newton is this feeling apparent, it is said. Newspapers in those sections have editorially scored existing conditions and a general request for a return to the old status, before being attached to the Boston Postal District, is anticipated, unless there is a quick change for better service.

NOT ENOUGH CARRIERS.

The fact that twelve new [illegible] have been appointed to the Boston district is regarded, by carriers themselves, as "something of an improvement" but far from enough. "They could appoint 112, instead of twelve, and we would still be undermanned," declared a member of the carriers' union to the American.

This carrier stated that there are today seventy-two carriers less than in March, 1921, due to deaths and retirements. He declared that no effort is made to fill vacancies.

"It is just economy at the expense of the men," declared another member of the union.

Men in the postal service are watching with interest the shifting of the third class mail from jurisdiction of the Boston district to the railway mail service. Conflict of authority, unless definite regulations are laid down at once, is expected to cause a further delay in handling mail matter.

LOWELL BRIDGE COST FOUGHT BY CITIZENS

Twenty-nine citizens of Lowell have filed a bill in equity against the Engineering Service & Construction Company of Boston and against the city of Lowell.

The bill alleges that the city of Lowell entered into an illegal contract for the reconstruction of Central bridge over the Merrimac River; that the price agreed on was $4,000, and the city council appropriated $60,000 for the work.

It is charged that the company received $7,000 in excess of the contract price, but the company claims the city owes it $29,000.

The bill asks that the city be restrained from paying the money and also that the company be ordered to return to the city all money unlawfully received. The order of notice is returnable May 1.

Dean—You have put me out of business and lost everything so my wife and three children will suffer i am givin you warning i am going to get you so look out." The signature is a crudely drawn death's head. United States postoffice inspectors and the Boston police are tracing the letter.

Admit They Sold Liquor Over the Bar, but It Was All High Class Stuff.

Admitting that he sold liquor, but only of the best quality, George F. Cluff of No. 922 Tremont street today attacked bitterly the purveyors of poisonous moonshine.

Cluff, whose place was one of the thirty three closed in the liquor crusade of the Boston Licensing Board, said he had been selling the best liquor that could be bought in Boston for eighteen months.

George E. Cluff

He said the men who are selling poison liquor should be given life sentences, and that eight out of ten soft drink parlors are dispensing death dealing whiskey.

Thomas H. Gerraughty of No. 287 Columbus avenue, another whose license was revoked, also declared that he sold nothing but the best of liquor.

"I have been running a soft drink saloon for over eighteen months" said Cluff to the Boston American, "and in that time I [illegible] that I have sold much liquor. [illegible] I do deny, and that most emphatically, that I ever sold any [illegible] best.

"I never sold a drop of this so called hooch or moonshine in my life, and anyone who does sell the poisonous stuff should be given a life sentence.

"My place of business was at No. 922 Tremont street, and I kept the cleanest and most orderly place in the city, barring none. I never had a loafer or bum in my place, and no [illegible] who was not able to get home alone.

"I did not deny, when I was brought before the licensing board, that I sold liquor, and I have nothing but the highest praise for the [illegible] the way they treated me.

"My customers were from all walks of life, from the highest and biggest people in Boston, who came to my place in expensive cars driven by chauffeurs, to the man working for a day's pay. I treated them all the same, giving them the best liquor that could be bought in Boston, and they were all satisfied.

BALKED AT OWN STUFF.

"My conscience is clear as far as selling poisonous liquor is concerned, but these men who are selling it, and I know a great many, ought to be in jail.

"I know some saloon keepers who could not drink the stuff they were peddling and had to come to me for a drink of good liquor when they wanted it. I know that eight out of ten of the soft drink parlors are selling death dealing whiskey."

Gerraughty, who said he was in the liquor business thirty five years, declared he had been dealing in good whiskey to a small and select clientele.

James D. Butler, No. 108 Kneeland street, whose license was suspended for one week, said the police [illegible] show a warrant when they entered his place. He said the police claimed they found a bottle and glass which contained liquor.

John E. Wood, No. 47 Albany street, license suspended for two weeks, refused to make any statement.

Peter J. Conner, No. 105 Kneeland street, license suspended for two weeks, said he was badly treated, being given no trial. While he was sick, Conner declared his place was raided and two pints were found on the person of one man, a patron.

DEATH THREAT PROBED.

Sacco and Nicola, No. 95 Cross street, North End, license suspended three days, said the police did not show a warrant. Two raids were fruitless, they declared, and the third resulted in the seizure of a half pint bottle.

Commissioner Josiah S. Dean of the licensing board, received a threatening letter, as a result of the crusade. It read:

"You have put me out of business and I lost everything, so my wife and children will suffer. I am giving you warning I am going to get you, so look out."

The letter was signed by a crude drawn skull and cross bones. It was turned over to the police, who with postal authorities, are investigating.

NOVEL ALARM TRAPS PHONE COIN THIEF

A young man who confessed that he had been robbing telephone pay stations in Batavia street apartment houses was captured by a novel police burglar alarm. Officers rigged up an alarm on a telephone pay station. When the man, William J. Hill, twenty six years old, of No. 81 Warwick street, Brookline, arrived he was seized as the alarm was rung. Hill said he was formerly a collector for the telephone company and retained his key which gave him access to deposit boxes.

Sacrifice Boys and Girls to Heathen Gods in Burma

Rangoon, India, March 16 (By International News Service).—Sacrifices of boys and girls to heathen gods and a traffic in slaves still exist among the Naga tribesmen in Northern Burma, says a government commission which has been attempting to suppress both these forms of ancient cruelty.

Tribesmen living in the Naga hills are fierce and warlike and have never been subjected by the whites. Every year, they with pagan rites, sacrifice six boys and ten girls at least. Some years the human sacrifices run as high as twenty boys and thirty girls. Many of them are kidnaped in the nearby Province of Assam.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

USE MULSIFIED

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Says "Every Box Is Worth Its Weight in Gold"—Suffered Untold Misery for Twenty Years.

"Today I am Well and Happy"

Gentlemen: Will say that for twenty years I suffered untold misery. I spent hundreds of dollars trying to find relief. Often doctors gave me morphine to lessen the pain. I could not work, was very thin and was given up as a hopeless case.

I had headaches all the time, was dizzy, my eyes were swollen; had no courage to do anything, was very despondent and disagreeable.

But one blessed day a friend sent me one of Dr. Lewis Baker's great guide books, "Health and Beauty," which contains many wonderful prescriptions and advice. I found Balmwort Tablets prescribed for kidney trouble, and I [illegible] they are the best medicine of any kind sold in the world today. Every box is worth its weight in gold. I take great pleasure in recommending them to all that are suffering with kidneys or bladder. I shall not be without them the rest of my life. Because today I am well and happy and weigh 195 pounds. Always at your service.

REV. S. L. RUSSELL,

"Use Balmwort," Say Pittsburg Folks

Says Kidney and Bladder Trouble Reduced Her to a Mere Shadow

Dear Sirs: I had suffered for four years with kidney and bladder disorders in the worst form. For four years I had suffered everything but death, and I lost weight from 190 pounds to 117 pounds and was so weak that I could not walk. I picked up your little book, read about your Balmwort Tablets, procured them of the druggist and when I had taken half of the box I was able to again do my own work. I had gotten so bad that I was pass[illegible] and black clots, but thanks to your wonderful medicine, Balmwort, I am almost a well woman now. I can and do recommend it to all who are suffering from kidney and bladder troubles like mine.

Thanking you again, I remain,
Yours truly,
MRS. ANNA DANTZ,
Rear 98 Lackey Ave., Woods Run,
N. S. Pittsburgh, Pa.

Wilmerding Lady Says Irritation and Pain "Sets the Nerves Wild"

First Dose of Balmwort Brought Great Help

Dear Sirs: I surely want to say the Balmwort Tablets are fine. I had irritation of the bladder, my back hurt, and a burning feeling in the bladder that sets the nerves wild. The first dose helped me. My sister also took them. She had inflammation of the bladder with pus. She took them after she had been using a doctor's medicine in vain, and got relief at once. We always intend to keep a box handy. My sister and I, each, have one of your "Health and Beauty" books and would like for you to send one to the address on the coupon enclosed.

Thank you,
MRS. ANDREW NILSON,
6 Sprague St., Wilmerding, Pa.

Locomotive Worker Taken With Pains in the Back

Dear Sirs: I am employed as a locomotive hostler and while working I was taken with pains in the back. Someone advised me on taking some Balmwort Tablets, so I purchased a box and was relieved shortly. I have taken two boxes now and feel as good as before I was bothered with my kidneys. I can say nothing too good for Balmwort Tablets. You may publish this letter.

Yours truly,
FLOYD L. BARNARD,
S. Diamond St., Canastota, New York.

YOU CAN BE FREE—YOU CAN ENJOY LIFE!

You need not lose sleep and get old and haggard long before your time! Use Balmwort Tablets and prove it. Weakness of the kidneys' functions bring on a long train of aches, pains, distress and suffering—and Balmwort Tablets have been so successful in helping kidney and bladder ailments that no one who suffers can afford to do without their quick, balmy, grateful benefits, which in many cases seems to be permanent freedom.

You may or may not have backache—Your symptoms may be a dragging, weary stiffness and soreness of the muscles and joints—or sudden, shooting, stabbing pains like rheumatism, often with blinding headache, dizziness, sluggishness, feverishness and chilly sensations. Distress in the bladder region, pressure and frequent demands followed by smarting, burning, stinging sensations, sometimes with lack of control and the necessity of rising from your bed from one to six times during the night, all mean that you need the assistance of the gentle-acting, balmy, Balmwort Tablets.

These are the usual symptoms of kidney and bladder disturbances, which cause you to be unduly tired, depressed, nervous, irritable and cross to your family and associates.

These conditions, if not attended to, often lead to much more serious ones.

Balmwort Tablets have been helping folks everywhere for the past 15 years. Thousands rely on them and send us thankful letters of praise and recommendation.

In most cases, the first few doses bring astonishing relief and the patient is soon delighted with the influence toward recovery. Go now to your druggist and get the regular size Balmwort Tablets—$1.25, or the Trial size, 60 cts.

Remember! Balmwort is inexpensive, and the results must satisfy you or money back. They contain no habit-forming drugs or opiates. Now is the time.

"Had Such Pains Could Hardly Walk"

Better Appetite — Work Is Pleasure

Dear Sirs: I am proud to say I have been a user of Balmwort Tablets. Am taking my third box. Am feeling fine and sleep good. I was troubled with my kidneys so bad I could hardly walk; had such pains — also rheumatic pains for some time. I took medicines, but Balmwort Tablets are the only thing that gave me relief. I hope that sufferers like me will give them a trial.

"My Back Ached Continually"

Dear Sirs: I suffered with a pressure in lower part of body, my back ached continually, had frequent calls followed by burning sensation that almost made life unbearable. I had feverishness and felt as though I would never get relief. I began Balmwort Tablets and after taking a few I felt a change, felt so much better and bought the second box. That was in July and I have not suffered since. I am forty-three and had not been able to do my housework. Now I can work with ease. I hope this letter may reach others, so they can know how good these tablets are.

The Power of Public Opinion

No movement has ever succeeded—can ever succeed—without the backing of public opinion.

In the March Issue of MoToR is an article dealing with the formation of The Motorists' League for Countryside Preservation.

The purpose of this League may be seen from the pledge given below.

In standing squarely in back of this important movement, MoToR feels it can render a definite service to the ten million car owners who throng the highways of America.

The League bears the endorsement, among others, of President Harding, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, the Governors of many States, mayors of cities and prominent individuals from all parts of the country.

Your interest as a car owner—as a prospective car owner, alone is necessary. The League has no dues—no fees.

And from the American public, from the millions who find delight and recreation in the broad highways that lead to the national parks, the State reservations, the public camping sites, the Motorists' League for Countryside Preservation asks support.

Through its editorial pages, MoToR is glad to lend its influence in fostering a movement that will have such a wide and beneficent influence.

In succeeding issues of MoToR you will find the work of the League, its progress, the formation of the local chapters, etc., given wide publicity.

You as a motorist will find this story of definite interest.

Public opinion—the force behind any movement—is appealed to for hearty support.

The March issue of MoToR, with the League's story, is on sale at all newsstands

Grins and Growls

By Nat N. Dorfman

THE easiest way to beat the high cost of living is to beat the grocer and butcher into insensibility.

Somebody said what this country needs most is a good 5-cent cigar. It could also use one of those good old-fashioned shows for a nickel.

The fellow who [illegible] the [illegible] these days is one the prohibition officers ought to investigate.

If you ask the old-fashioned farmer about [illegible] he'll [illegible] two blades of [illegible] grow where one grew before.

Any wife will [illegible] her husband with [illegible] of hers, but the [illegible] question is, can you trust the chairs?

There are worse things than jazz music, but just now we can't seem to think of one of them.

In England the men wear [illegible] on their [illegible]. In America the women wear them on their [illegible] and yet we English-speaking people have a great deal in common.

A man down South took care of the baby while his wife fought a duel with the man who insulted her. Evidently [illegible] knew [illegible] was [illegible] better than his.

A man [illegible] by the company [illegible] to keep [illegible] the [illegible] agreement [illegible].

Most men are natural born liars and it's darn lucky they are or their married existences would be unbearable.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

The Boston American will pay $1 for "Best Joke" published. Address "Jokes," Boston American.

An old man was busy in the back yard with a hammer and saw. "Good morning, Mr. Smith," said a neighbor, "how is your wife this morning?" (The wife had a cold.) "Just about the same," said Smith. "She didn't sleep very well last night." "I suppose that's her coffin [illegible]." "No, it ain't her coffin," said Smith, "it's a new hen house."

A [illegible] wed in [illegible] ceremony [illegible]

R[illegible]

AT first it was adventure [illegible] soon it got to be a habit.

[illegible] had the [illegible]

E[illegible] came to a few [illegible] a wedding.

O[illegible] were going [illegible] they looked [illegible]

PRETTY soon the habit got such [illegible] upon the husband that [illegible] along with him [illegible] church and try [illegible] get married by himself.

HE became such an expert at [illegible] ask the questions [illegible] answer [illegible]

THEY got along wonderfully. They were so busy getting married that they didn't have time [illegible]

OF course once in a while they'd quarrel. They'd both see a different church and then scrap [illegible] one to get married in first.

FINALLY they compromised. In the morning they got hitched in the place he picked out and in the afternoon they were wed in the place she chose.

THEY only got married mornings and afternoons and had the evenings free to themselves.

OLDER people ought to take a tip from this young couple. If husbands and wives would make it a practice to go to church once a week and get married again [illegible]

THIS would be a good way to [illegible] your romance [illegible]

EVEN [illegible] some day.

THERE'S nothing to be afraid [illegible] additional weddings don't tie you together any tighter. You can be married fifty times, but it only takes one divorce to separate you.

DON'T MISTAKE NERVOUS HASTE FOR EARNEST PURPOSE.

Do not take yourself so seriously.

You seem to think that if you do not accomplish a certain thing in the time you have set you will [illegible] the world will no [illegible] smoothly.

It is right to have a sense of [illegible] and a desire to be [illegible] responsibility.

[illegible] yourself and everyone with whom you [illegible] to accomplish your purpose you are making a mistake.

A thing done well must work in well with everything else.

Your anxiety to "do or die" may be more a nervous haste to get to the end of what you have started rather than an earnest purpose to carry on and accomplish a certain great good.

You must remember that accomplishment takes time.

You do no good by hurrying.

Perhaps half the good you wish to accomplish would be lost if you succeeded in gaining your point too quickly.

For your own growth and for the welfare of the many it is sometimes best that time is given you to work things out [illegible]

Safety First.

Hale—I understand that you do all of your wife's housework for her.

Hardy—Yes. I can't bear to see her lift her hand.

Hale—Are you afraid that she might strain herself?

Hardy—No. I'm afraid she might wallop me with it.

Hard to Prove

Nancy—Yes, I am only twenty years old.

Clancy—I don't believe it; I'm going to ask your mother.

Nancy—Oh, no, you can't prove it that way. She died in 1894.

Screen Version Novelized

By Jane McLean

SPRING had woven the spell of its magic over the country; the dogwood was in blossom and the air had that delicious odor that penetrates the blood and gives plausibility to that favorite axiom about young man's fancy lightly turning to thoughts of love.

Even in the city the god of romance hovered over the parks, and with beckoning fingers called the millions of workers to cross the Hudson and seek reward at the end of the rainbow.

Who is more cosmopolitan than romance? He is no respecter of persons. He is equally at home in the big mansions of Fifth avenue and in the teeming tenements of Delancey street.

It was not strange that he had entered "The Mammoth" department store and found victims almost against their will.

Still, it was a tribute to his power that in the busy basement, devoted to the selling of cheap millinery, music, shoes, notions and marked-down goods generally that he ruled with a sway as absolute as he wielded in a leafy lane under theh witching spell of moonlight.

The girls and the men who worked for The Mammoth did so because—because they needed the money; and the fact that it was not much and the hours were long and the quarters anything but cheerful were silent exponents of how badly they needed it.

There were all sorts there; fat and thin girls whose parents had been scarcely a dozen years in the land of the free; girls whose grandparents had come from New England and settled in New York; men who dreamed of making millions and barely managed to save their lunch money out of their weekly pay.

Thoughts of Spring.

Perhaps it was the gay-colored flowers, product of a sweat shop, that brought the thought of Spring to the lips of a sick-looking young woman whose only name was Lily.

"I'd rather spend the Summer out in the fields under the daisies than in this place."

A sister optemist patted her arm: "Don't worry, my dear, you will," she assured her with the harshness of youth.

Her name was Angie Sprunt and she had sized Lily up not long for this world; with all her bluntness she was not unfeeling and she figured that Lily would be better off almost anywhere than in the basement of The Mammoth.

For herself she felt a little superior to the rest of the workers; she had once graced the stage as a member of a chorus in a cheap vaudeville troupe. She always referred to her "art" when speaking of those days and by assuming airs and a knowledge of the stage she had come to be regarded as a sort of paragon by her fellow workers.

Angie made no pretense of speaking the English language as taught in the schools; she had acquired her linguistic facility from sources that frowned on grammar and substituted directness of expression for elegance thereof.

What little heart she had she had bestowed on Max Plute, a gentleman whose size and rotundity suggested anything but idealism. And here again romance smiled as he had a right to do.

Mr. Plute was in the shoe department, and on this particular morning he had been busy with several cranky customers; all the time that he was trying to assure them that shoes a size too small were large for them, the strains of the piano banged by Jimmy Fitzgibbons roused in his soul the ecstacy of the dance.

Jimmy was the hero of the basement. To be able to play popular songs, as he played them and sang them, too, were accomplishments worthy of admiration.

A Beau Brummel

Jimmy was moreover a Beau Brummel, and as he sat with his straw hat on his head, one spatted foot working the loud pedal and a cane laid ostentatiously on the piano, he presented a figure that might have won the heart of any girl. Max Plute watched the little crowd gather while Jimmy tried to put over the song. He was an admirer of the singer and predicted great things for him.

Jimmy's raucous voice sang out:

With you within my reach
Out on a moonlight beach,
What wouldn't I do
To you—oo—oo.

Romance again; the words seemed to make appeal to the crowd; Jimmy did a rushing sale of sheet music.

"He's got the stuff," said Max Plute, wandering over toward Angie in a spare moment.

"He sure has," said Angie chewing gum; "say he's the [illegible] kid; Jimmy is all right."

"That moonlight beach stuff is what gets 'em," said Mr. Plute.

"Why wouldn't it?" asked Angie, looking around the basement.

"We'll have to go down to the beach ourselves when the weather gets a little warmer," suggested Mr. Plute, who was perspiring freely.

"Warmer?" sneered Angie; "where do you get that stuff, Max?"

Unfeeling customers interrupted and romance suffered a temporary setback.

Not far from Angie's counter was the corset department, presided over by Sara Juke. Nature had been kind to Sara; she was good to look on, and not the type of face one would expect to see in the basement of The Mammoth.

The casual observer would have said at once: here is a girl who does not belong; so much with a fresh complexion and honest eyes and an inviting mouth do for their possessor. Sara shattered a few illusions when she spoke; "Honest, Madame," she was saying to a fat lady who was trying to get into a corset much too small, "you oughta take something not so tight—sure thing."

The lady cast a glance of scorn on the clerk and informed her in East Side jargon that so long as she was paying for the article she guessed she could have any size she wanted.

FINDING OF A SKULL

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest

ON the Island of Jersey, the island of the famous cows, in the English Channel, near the French coast, a skull, looking to be half ape and half human, has just been dug up by workmen excavating in the rear of an old house. The forehead is unfortunately mostly destroyed, but what remains of the skull is sufficient to make experts think that its owner may have been a brother to the famous Pithecanthropus erectus, the Java "ape man," hitherto the oldest recognized "missing link" between man and his anthropoidal ancestors, and who lived half a million years ago.

If the Pithecanthropi were spread so widely as from the island of Java in the East Indies to the Island of Jersey on the western edge of Europe, they must have been a long-enduring race, and there must have been ready means of communication open to them from one side of the globe to the other.

Also, either there has been an enormous change of climatic conditions on the earth between their day and ours, for Java lies in the heart of the equatorial zone, only about eight degrees from the line, while Jersey is about fifty degrees north of the equator, in the midst of the north temperate zone, or else those ape-men already possessed the human characteristic of being able to adapt themselves to a broad range of climate.

The hypothesis of a change of climate is a highly probable one. The age of the Pithecanthropus was that known in geology as the "first interglacial stage," which is believed to have lasted 75,000 years, from the retreat of the "first ice" to the on-coming of the "second ice." During that time the present zonal arrangement of climates did not exist, at least not in the relatively fixed state known to us today. A Pithecanthropus in Jersey might then have been as comfortably circumstanced as his brother in Java, though he might not have had quite so many tall trees to climb or big nuts to throw.

The accidental finding of this skull in a place so long and constantly inhabited as the Island of Jersey shows why the search for missing links in the descent of man has been heretofore so disappointing. It is because the search has not been either vigorously or systematically pursued.

Public Now Prefers Vegetable Laxatives

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin affords prompt relief in a natural way

THE public is constantly becoming more discriminating in its choice of things. Those subject to constipation try to learn what makes them constipated, and then avoid it. If constipation persists in spite of all their efforts they take the mildest, most easily tolerated laxative obtainable, and not a drastic physic that upsets them for days afterwards. As over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sold a year, a large proportion of the people of this country must believe that this mild vegetable compound is the proper remedy for them, and so it is. No need to take salt waters and powders that dry up the blood; coal-tar drugs in candy form that produce skin eruptions, or calomel that salivates. These drugs are "heroic measures", over-effective, weakening and griping.

The best constipation remedy is the one that moves the bowels without shock to your system, and such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and has been satisfactorily sold for 30 years. Unlike the harsher physics it does not produce a habit, and increased doses are not required; in fact, it so trains the stomach muscles that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with.

Many take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin once a week as a health safeguard. Others use it only when required, as, for example, Mrs. J. W. Borroughs of Little Rock, Ark., who finds it equally valuable for herself and the children, and Mr. Enas S. Costa of Watsonville, Cal., whose family uses it regularly. Try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in constipation, biliousness, piles, headaches, sallow complexion, and to break up fevers and colds. A generous-size bottle can be had at any drug store, and it costs only about a cent a dose!

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

ABOUT YOUR BEAUTY

By Maria Jeritza

Famous Beauty and Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

THERE isn't a woman living, young or old, in normal health, who may not, if she chooses, have attractive hair. Its color is of minor importance. What does matter is that her scalp and hair, responding to the intelligent care she gives them, are always at their best.

The scalp is a subject of sufficient importance to dwell on at length in a later chat.

The hair, we shall find, depends for most of its beauty on its shampoos and daily brushings.

Some women with lovely tresses advocate weekly, and even more frequent, shampoos. Others maintain that once a month or even once in six weeks is often enough to wash the hair. You must decide for yourself by watching the condition of your own scalp and hair. When dandruff begins to appear—and even before this condition starts—as soon as your head feels hot and irritated—you need a shampoo.

A blonde should be particularly careful to wash her hair as soon as it begins to look oily, for as one wise beauty expressed it, "If a woman's hair is her crown of glory, a blonde's is her halo, her aureole."

I find that for myself my weekly shampoo, preceded by an olive oil rub and followed by a lemon-and-water rinse, keeps my hair in fine condition if I brush it faithfully each day.

I choose a strong brush with rather short wire bristles attached to a rubber back. This type of brush is easily cleaned.

At least twice a week a hairbrush should be thoroughly scrubbed with water and warm soapsuds, rinsed and dried in the sunshine. The necessity of immaculate toilet articles cannot be too much emphasized. Without them the most thorough shampoo is a waste of time.

Every day I have my hair well brushed for about ten minutes. I prefer bedtime for this brushing, but it may fit best into your regime in the morning. You will, in either case, be more than repaid by the increased lustre of your tresses, and by the loss of the dust which is transferred from them to your brush.

In the case of the girl who curls her hair twice a week and depends upon its retaining its wave the remaining days, this systematic daily brushing is a forbidden luxury. But she will have to shampoo her hair oftener because she brushes it less. And, of course, she will brush her hair thoroughly — and massage her scalp as well — just before each shampoo and each curling.

ENEMIES OF WOMEN

TALE OF MONTE CARLO DURING WAR

By Vicente Blasco Ibanez.

"I'M not going to ask you to how many you have said what you have just said to me. Perhaps you have never said it to any one before. To fulfill your desires it wasn't necessary to exert yourself by playing a comedy of deep love. Women sought you passionately; like a Sultan, you needed only to throw your handkerchief as a signal. But when it comes to me!

"Remember, Michael, as children we hated each other; later on, when I was willing, you were not. And now we are beginning to grow old. Nor have I now the same freedom, since I have—you know what! It is absurd. No, never!"

It was the Prince's turn to speak. They had hated each other; that was true. And now he considered that hate as fortunate. What a misfortune for both of them if marriage had united their two enormous fortunes and their two prides, more enormous still!

"We should have separated a week later; perhaps the same day," Michael continued. "I even suspect that I should have beaten you."

"And I you," said the Duchess. "No place would have been large enough to hold us both. It would have been necessary for one of us to have given in to the other. And neither of us would have thought of making such a sacrifice."

"I might say the same," he continued, "about the night when we dined together. I am glad of my absurd and ridiculous conduct on that occasion. Had I given in, there would be an invincible barrier between us now."

She assented.

"We should not be here, that is certain. You would have kept a frightful memory of me. I know very well what I was like then. Neither would I have sought you out, even though my life depended on it. Thanks to your flight that evening, we can still be friends, eternal friends. But why do you talk to me of love? It doesn't belong in our age. The time has passed. What do you see in me now that you did not see when I was young?"

"Today we both know misfortune; I as well as you, since I have lost what distinguished me from other men, something I shall never recover, perhaps. But your situation is still worse, you are a woman; you are poorer. And I feel attracted to you and tell you what I never would have told you if, shut up within our own pride, we had both kept our former places in the world."

He went on talking in a soothing tone almost in her ear, coming closer to her and breathing the perfume of the fur boa around her neck, which seemed to have concentrated in itself the fragrance of her whole body.

Alicia was not afraid of what people might say. It is true that she had a husband, who, now in the throes of a senile passion, would refuse to grant her a divorce. But why should she care for an obstacle like that, or for what people would say about it! She had done more daring things in her life!

TELL THESE AT DINNER

The four-year-old son of a doctor had paid his first visit to Sunday school, and on his return his mother asked him what story the teacher had told him.

"It was about the Good Samerican," answered the boy. "This Samerican found a man left by robbers on the road. He had wounds all over him. The Samercan poured oil on them. Iodine would have been better."

Mrs. Backbite and her friend were discussing people and things over afternoon tea. Their conversation turned at last to the woman who had come to live next door.

"What do you think of her?" asked Mrs. Pry of her hostess.

"Quite nice," replied Mrs. Backbite, not to be so easily drawn into scandal, in case her remarks were repeated to the person under review.

"Quite so," said Mrs. Pry, who was determined not to be frustrated. "But—speaking as cat to cat, what do you really think of her?"

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis.

THERE'S a little white house on the slope of a hill where the lingering sun-rays lie when the twilight world is all hushed and still, as they pause for a last good-bye. And it seems like the sun on its journey west leaves a touch of its glory there, for the little white house that its rays caressed is always so bright and so fair. There's an oak tree that shields it with rustling leaves till the heat of the Summer is spent, and the swallows perch there 'neath its spreading eaves with a twitter of sweet content. There's a porch where the clustering roses twine, and the ivy clings close to the trees, and a nook where the honeysuckle vine sends its fragrance afloat on the breeze. But the best of that house on the slope of the hill is the greeting that waits me inside; when I think of it, always I feel a thrill of happiness, love and pride. And there's never a day but my glad thoughts go, winging swift as the swallows fly, to that little white house where the roses grow and the sunlight loves to lie. For it's Mother-love that is waiting there while the changing seasons go; it is changeless through Summertime's musk-sweet air and the Winter with storm-cloud and snow. So no castle that's set by a sapphire sea in some far-famed beauty spot can hold such allure and appeal for me as I feel in that sun-kissed cot. Oh, little white house, be you staunch, be you strong to shelter her day after day while the years are as fleet as the swallows' song

ETIQUETTE POINTERS

By Ann Adams

DEAR MISS ADAMS:

Is it necessary to have ushers at a church wedding? The church is small, and only a few guests will be present.

As I am far from my home, and my parents will not be able to attend my wedding, how should the wedding invitation read?

JEAN.

IF a few guests are to be present at a small church wedding, it is not necessary to have ushers.

I would suggest that you write your own notes of invitation. Perhaps something like this:

Dear Mary:

Jack and I are to be married at ——— Church at 12 o'clock on Wednesday, February the 14th. We both want you to come.

With dearest greetings from us both.

Lovingly,
JEAN.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

No tree ever quite reaches heaven.

Perhaps it will pay you to remember this when you hear talk about fantastic prices looming ahead for this, that and the next commodity.

I don't look for either $1 or 50-cent gasoline.

I don't look for either 50-cent or 40-cent cotton.

I don't look for 20-cent or 15-cent sugar.

I don't look for much higher prices for building materials.

I don't look for any further spectacular rise in wool.

I don't look for silk prices soaring much above their present abnormally high level.

I don't look for fulfillment of predictions of materially higher prices for automobiles—they may have to be marked up a little.

I don't look for any long continuance of the drastic advance in coffee prices.

I don't look for steel billets skyrocketing much farther—they have risen from $28 a year ago to $42.50.

I don't look for lead climbing much more—it is not far from 100 per cent. above the quotation of twelve months ago.

• Tin ditto.

And the list could be lengthened.

If these expectations be falsified, then look out for squalls.

The more responsible leaders in the building industry have come out openly and confessed that they are unhappy over the prospect of what may happen should prices not be kept within bounds. Read this warning, issued by the Associated General Contractors of America, on the subject of climbing costs: "We belive that the construction industry will be seriously damaged unless this trend is stopped and the public be informed thereof."

If you have goods to sell, don't be a hog.

If I were a cotton grower, for example, I would be willing to part with my cotton at today's prices. I would recall what happened to most planters when they refused to sell the last time cotton soared towards 40 cents a pound.

* * *

Here is the advice given the other day by one of the shrewdest bankers in New York to a wholesale business man who explained that he was figuring upon ordering five cars of a certain class of goods for future delivery: "Order two cars now and be satisfied to book your orders at a reasonable profit. Take the chance of being able to cover the rest of your requirements once you have sold up your two carloads."

Stick to running your business in a business-like way. Don't go out of your way to run a Monte Carlo. Be content with satisfactory profits.

Don't overexpand for the sake of seeking to pocket a big speculative profit by and by.

Print these two lines on a placard and paste them in your establishment:

BUY AND SELL.

DON'T BUY AND BUY.

The veteran Henry Clews when he felt the stock market was developing a dangerously bullish trend, used to tell customers who clamored to load up with stocks right-away-quick: "The stock exchange will be open from 10 to 3 tomorrow and every day."

You can accept this as a dependable prediction:

Either prices will not be so very far above present levels and business will be good six months from now;

Or, if prices rise sensationally above current levels, then six months from now it will be dangerous to be carrying enormous stocks of goods.

Eureka Smelting
AND Mining Company

GEORGE T. WILSON
STATES:

I have resigned as Vice-President of the Harriman National Bank of New York to accept the Presidency of the Eureka Smelting & Mining Company.

This action was taken after long and careful consideration and investigation. The merits and magnitude of the enterprise and the unusual opportunities it affords for safety of investment and large returns induced me to make the change and I shall give it my best and undivided endeavors.

After careful investigation experts estimate that, when in full operation the company will earn unusual profits.

PAN-AMERICANS OFF 2 TO 3 POINTS

Stocks rallied in New York today after displaying a heavy tone in early prices.

Marked irregularity characterized the opening. Further profit-taking in the oil group resulted in Pan American A and AB falling around 3 and 2 points respectively, while California Petroleum, Standard Oil of California, Royal Dutch and a few of the minor issues receded fractionally.

Cosden and Sinclair continued their rise to higher ground. Jones Brothers Tea established a new peak price.

Louisville & Nashville dropped 3½ points, but the Southern Railway issues an dNew Haven were firm.

Now that freight congestion is being relieved, as evidenced by the cancelation of embargoes by several important Eastern railroads, it is probable that goods will flow more freely from producer to consumer and that thereby will be imparted a pronounced stimulation to general trade. Loosening of clogged transportation arteries will this year exert as beneficial an influence as Spring normally does.

In the meantime as a factor bearing upon the genulness and probable permanence of this business boom is the fact that, despite an unparalleled demand for commodities and despite the persistent transportation difficulties, manufacturers have not been storing goods.

Credits are sound, talk of an early advance in the discount rate is deprecated. With production increasing, new plants being opened up, with inventories low and demand high, prosperity still appears to be rising.

Call money opened at 5 per cent. Demand sterling was 4$.68 15-16, up 7-16.

PRICES RULE FIRM IN COTTON FUTURES

Prices in New York cotton futures today ruled firm. March was up 6 at 30.91; May, up 5 at 31.05; July, up 4 at 30.34; October, up 3 at 26.77; December, 26.22.

Massachusetts Lighting

Trustees of Massachusetts Lighting Cos. have declared regular quarterly dividends of $1.50 on the 6 per cent. preferred and $2 on the 4 per cent. preferred, both payable April 16 to stock of record March 26.

President Frederick H. Payne says: The unprecedented conditions which have confronted the small tool industry for the past two years have necessitated many adjustments—a sharp curtailment of production and the temporary suspension of common stock dividends. These conditions started with the wholesale cancellation of customers' orders in the late Fall of 1920 and an almost complete cessation of buying on the part of the merchants, and during 1921 were further aggravated by the liquidation of large stocks of merchandise purchased during the war period by the government.

It was not until Spring of 1922 any improvement occurred. At that time borrowings of company were at their highest, but since then there has been a continued and steady improvement, and company earned in excess of its preferred dividend during the last half of 1922 and was able to reduce its indebtedness $500,000 from the high point, largely as the result of reduction of inventories. Since January 1, 1923, a still further improvement is shown in orders and sales, and if this improvement continues we will have a very satisfactory report to make to the stockholders at the close of the present year.

DETROIT EDISON.

To T. T., Allston—Condensed analysis of Detroit Edison follows: Speculative capital shares of public utility company. Steady. Management good. Financial position satisfactory. FRENCH BONDS LOOK GOOD TO MOODY'S

Moody's Weekly Review of Financial Conditions in its current issue says:

"Call money in February recorded the highest average since the bull movement began, although money is ordinarily cheap at this season. Rates are advancing in response to the larger production and the higher prices. Commercial acceptances now represent the cheapest money on the market, being even cheaper than call loans; and the advantage as to rates has passed from the stock market to the merchant and producer.

"The rise of interest rates should be expected to continue through April because of the great trade activity, after which the demand for funds should relax during the Summer dull period. Then if the crop movement and the Autumn trade are up to normal, money rates should begin advancing again in the early Autumn. Call money is apt to be pretty cheap in the Summer, when wealthy traders and investors are away, but the trend of commercial paper discounts should be pretty steadily upward, although the rise promises to be slow.

"In stock market parlance the French nation looks like a purchase; and this means that exchange on Paris as well as French government obligations and corporation stocks and bonds appear promising for the long pull. To purchase them is really a long swing investment in French exchange. France now seems to be in a stronger and safer position both economically and financially than for many years past."

QUOTATIONS FOR WHEAT ADVANCED

In the Chicago pit today wheat prices were ½c to ⅝c higher, corn ⅛c to ⅝c up and oats unchanged to ¼c higher. Wheat—May, 1.19 to 1.20; July, 1.15; September, 115¼ to 1.15½. Corn—May, 74 to 74¼; July, 76½ to 76⅝. Oats—May, 44⅞ to 45; July, 44⅜.

INTERNATIONAL SHOE PROSPERS

International Shoe Company's shipments for first three months of present fiscal year, December to February, inclusive, were 15 per cent. to 20 per cent. in excess of corresponding period last year, according to President Rand. This year's business is expected to exceed last year, which was a record.

American Cables

All America Cables, Inc., for 1922 shows net profit of $3,380,347 after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equivalent to $12.59 a share on outstanding $26,838,000 stock, against $3,255,794, or $14.71 a share on $22,130,500 stock in 1921.

Resumes Dividend

Sloss Sheffield declared quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on preferred stock, payable April 2 to stock of record March 26. This is first payment since dividend was passed March 8, 1922.

BOSTON & MAINE EARNINGS FAIR

Preliminary estimates indicate gross earnings of $5,975,000 for Boston & Maine in February. This would be approximately $338,000, or 5.3 per cent. less than actual gross in January, but in this connection it should be taken into consideration that February is a short month. Estimated gross is $48,000 more than in February last year.

It is interesting to note that estimated earnings from freight are approximately $200,000 less than they were in February, 1922, a shrinkage of about 5.3 per cent. Passenger revenues, on the other hand, apparently increased about $118,000.

The movement of coal on the Boston & Maine continued heavy in February, in fact it was really given the right of way to relieve the necessities of New England and this involved a certain amount of dislocation of other more profitable merchandise traffic. The actual net ton miles, including both revenue and company freight, handled on the Boston & Maine in February were actually about 6 per cent. less than in February, 1922. This, together with the fact that the basis of freight rates was lower, was sufficient to account for the falling off in freight revenue. But this loss was offset by the gain in passenger earnings and an increase in express and mail revenues.

KENTUCKY STANDARD PROFITS ARE TOLD

Standard Oil of Kentucky for 1922 shows net profits of $4,461,874 after federal taxes, equivalent to $6.67 a share (par $25) on $16,715,221 outstanding stock, against $2,717,542 or $45.29 on $6,000,000 old stock ($100 par) outstanding in 1921.

Money Not Collected

Some Poor Business People

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

How little some people know about business and money and their own welfare and how wildly and [illegible]lingly government bonds were bought during the war, is shown in the following announcement: "One hundred and ninety million dollars in government securities, which have reached maturity and on which no more interest will be paid, have not been presented to the government for payment."

The government, of course, is the gainer. The little people that have lost, mislaid or forgotten the bonds and savings certificates are the losers. If the citizen able to buy bonds, even on a small scale, knows so little about business and business methods, what is the business ability of that average American intelligence which, according to the war test, is about that of a child of twelve or thirteen?

Do you wonder that big finance and get-rich-quick thieves are able to take money from one hundred and ten millions of Americans?

France Controls Prices

We Don't Know How

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

New England has been paying ten cents a pound for sugar, New York eight and a half cents. Other parts of the country are learning at high prices how easy it was for the Department of Commerce to put up the price of sugar with a few well-chosen words.

They would be delighted now to see the Department of Commerce show ability in putting the price of sugar down.

But there is no sign of that. It would be altogether too anarchistic and socialistic to suggest that there may or may not be a shortage in a year, which should not be made a reason for grafting and extortion now.

France without difficulty regulates the price of bread, and did so long before the late war. Why should not the people here regulate prices of certain staples, with complete respect for all rights involved, of course?

Get Your Automobile

Who Will Build Reasonable Garage Space?

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

An advertisement for one of the reasonable priced automobiles makes the following truthful statement, interesting to railroad managers and owners:

> "A hundred-mile Sunday automobile trip with four people costs less than NINETY CENTS per person, including gas, oil, tires, etc. The same trip by railroad would cost THREE DOLLARS per person."

And traveling by automobile you see the country, the people, you learn something.

The automobile enables everybody to live by the seashore and everybody to live close to the mountains. It brings everything near. It's the greatest blessing of the human race, and all it lacks is some man of genius to provide well-managed, low-priced garage accommodations in great cities.

The automobile makers ought to attend to that. They could do it easily. Now car storage costs per square foot five times what it should cost.

Free Political Prisoners

United States Proved Itself Most Intolerant and Tyrannical Government During the War

At the home of Dr. and Mrs. Richard C. Cabot, in Cambridge, Mass., there gathered the other day some two hundred people to hear James Manning, who has just been released from the Leavenworth Prison after having finished a five-year term for doing nothing that the Constitution of this country did not permit him to do, and indeed did not guarantee that he might do without fear. There are other men who were convicted at the same time and who are still serving sentences of twenty years.

So long as this Republic lasts it will bear on its escutcheon a mark of shame for the brutality with which men who opposed the late war and had the courage to say so were treated. With all our vaunting about our equality before the law, about our American democracy, about the rights guaranteed us under our free Constitution, we proved during the war to have had the most intolerant and tyrannical government among all the nations that fought in the war on either side. Our constitutional safeguards proved to be rotten threads. They protected us in nothing against the hysteria of the people excited by the war profiteers and big business and the crookedness of public officials under the control of these aggressive profiteering minorities. We proved that we were the most excitable, emotional people among the allies; that we had not yet learned, with all our political experience, tolerance of opinion. Our courts gave the most savage sentences given by any of the countries in the war against those who opposed the war. The very life of Great Britain was at stake during the war. A few miles separated her from the enemy. Yet her longest sentences for offences which were alleged against these American political prisoners was SIX MONTHS.

In Germany the Socialist party was a powerful party and the radical Socialists were a powerful body. The leader of these Socialists denounced the war, denounced the government, denounced the Emperor and urged his followers to refuse to fight. He was given only three years, while men in America, who were in no position to do the slightest harm by even the wildest talk of which they were capable and who as a matter of fact indulged in no wild talk that had a tendency even to be harmful, were imprisoned for twenty years. Not only that, but they were imprisoned alongside of murderers and thieves and highwaymen. These men, against whose character not a whisper ever had been raised, are still serving their sentences.

The liberal element of this country, the intelligent element, the patriotic element, will not rest until as much of the shame of these sentences as can be removed by promptly freeing these men has been removed.

AUTHOR HITS BAD PHONE MANNERS

LONDON, March 16.—"There must be a new code of telephone manners," says John Maynard Keynes, famous economist.

"I propose three principles for the new telephone manners," said Keynes, beginning to get irritable, heated and annoyed.

"1. To ring up a private house, in any case where a postal card or a letter would do equally well, should be thought inconsiderate.

"2. A stranger should have no more right to use the telephone of a private house than to open the front door.

"3. It should be bad manners, except among intimate friends, to issue an invitation on the telephone, which gives the invited person no time, without apparent rudeness on his part to consider whether he is really free and whether he wants to accept."

Late Night Trains

Editor Boston American:

Reading about the wretched service given by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, I am tempted to smile at the list of late trains published in the Boston American. They are a joke compared with what really exists. These lists tell of trains arriving in Boston. But if lists could only be published of trains, especially the night trains, arriving at their suburban destinations, a real eye-opener would be printed.

I am the victim of the last train to Brockton, which is supposed to leave Boston at 11:44 p. m. and arrive in Brockton at 12:40 a. m. This train has rarely left on time, usually waiting from fifteen to twenty-five minutes for engine 1543 to warm up. When she has left on time the train manages to pay up for it by a regular stop of about a half-hour somewhere in the woods between Braintree and South Braintree while she blows off a lot of steam, presumably because of low steam. A novice can see that the draught through the funnel is not increased by blowing of steam through her safety valves. After jogging along she finally manages to reach Brockton somewhere between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning. Everybody on board makes the best of it, but there are internal rumblings. Now the company is certainly not providing the proper service for which the commuter pays. It is not living up to its franchise. But let someone talk jitneys and a big holler goes up from the company and the legislative forces are marshalled against them. The telephone company in Minneapolis recently lost in a suit brought by a subscriber for bad service. Are the railroads not bound to live up to any contract in which the commuter pays ,for service (rendered), but not received.

JAMES J. JONES.

Orphan Girl in Need

Editor Helping Hand:

I have read the way you have helped others and I am writing to see if you could help me. I am a girl of fourteen and an orphan. I live with my sister, who has children of her own and whose husband doesn't work steadily. I wonder if there is anyone who has girl's clothes they could give me?

M. R.

Offers Baby Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

If you will get me in touch with two prospective mothers I will send them a few baby clothes to help out. Also please forward me the address of the girl who wrote for clothes for her seven-months-old baby in Saturday's American.

MRS. W. A. S.

ED. NOTE—Baby clothes are always needed. Thank you. You will be sent the addresses of T. E. A. and A. M., both of whom are prospective mothers, and also the address of "Agnes," whose letter was in Saturday's paper.

Wants Old Flannel

Editor Helping Hand:

Is there anyone of the kind readers who has any old pieces of flannel or cashmere or anything that would be good to work into a hooked rug that they would give to a poor shut-in who is trying to do all she can to help herself?

L. H. M.

Clothing to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

The following pieces of clothing will be sent to some deserving person upon receipt of their address: One dark gray suit, (woman's, size 42), brown shoes, medium heels (size 6D), white waist and two gingham dresses for a girl twelve years old. I wish I had more to give.

MRS. L. M.

ED. NOTE—Thank you. The address of a Lynn mother much in need of clothes of the size you mention will be sent you.

Needs Heavy Coat

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a young woman and have been sickly for ten years. The doctors advise me to go out, but I cannot afford a decent coat. I would like to get a heavy belted coat if I could (size 34) and a woolen scarf and wool hat of some kind. My husband only has work in the Summer, and it takes all we can get to pay our bills. I would be willing to crochet some yokes for the coat or for a wool jersey dress.

MRS. R. F.

Asks for Sweaters

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a little girl twelve years old and my father doesn't make very much pay. I would be very thankful for any clothes that you could send me, and also my brother (eight). We both need sweaters.

DOT.

More Baby Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I have the following articles of baby clothes to give to your fine cause. Hope you can find someone to use them

T. F. W.

ED. NOTE—Thank you many times, and for the fine list also. You will be sent the address of Mrs. M. G. L., who is much in need of baby clothes of both sizes.

Offers an Airedale

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a thoroughbred, five-months-old female Airedale puppy for some one. She is very kind to children. At present she is a little lame in one leg, but a veterinarian assures me she will outgrow that. I will also give a man's dark overcoat which could be made over for some child, one white crocheted tam for a nine-year-old girl, one Winter school coat and checked gingham slip-on dress for a girl nine or ten, two pairs Cuban-heeled woman's boots and one pair oxfords, all in fair condition (size 3½), two pairs men's Winter underdrawers (size 38), one plain wooden rocking chair with arms, and two kewpie dolls somewhat the worse for wear. I am very anxious for the puppy to find a good home soon. Could you possibly find some one who has a canary cage they would let me have?

MRS. M. G. S.

ED. NOTE—This is an excellent list. You will be sent the address of a twelve-year-old Methuen girl, who longs for a dog. The clothing is needed by Mrs. G. H., and the chair by C. L.

Exchange for Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a stroller and a baby walker which I would gladly give in exchange for some clothing to make over for two little girls, ages six years and four years, and a baby seven months. My husband has made only $10 a week all Winter, and it is impossible to get clothes for them.

MRS. J. F. D.

ED. NOTE—Sounds as though you needed the stroller and baby walker for that seven-month rascal.

Needs School Dresses

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a little girl twelve years old and I would like if some of your kind readers could send me some school dresses. I need school shoes very much (size 2). My mother cannot afford to buy me any now because we have been very sick this Winter.

MARY.

Box for Agnes

Editor Helping Hand:

I think your column does so much good. One cannot speak too highly of it. I have a box ready for Agnes. Please send me her address.

MRS. E. M.

ED. NOTE—We can't express ourselves about the kind contributors to the column. Agnes' address will be sent you.

THE WHEAT PIT SAYS THAT THE WORST IS OVER

By Herbert Kaufman

WAR clouds first cast their shadow on the wheat pit. The initial move of belligerents is the heavy purchase of bread stuffs.

Grain prices, you'll notice, collapsed on the day of the Brussels Conference.

Europe is manifestly confident that the pressure of bad blood is bringing the Ruhr boil to a head. That situation will break without lancing.

The Quai d'Orsay dare not allow economic occupation to develop into a reign of terror. A program of confiscation, hostages and executions in the Rhinelands will provoke world protest, just as surely as Germany's own conduct in Belgium and Flanders turned civilization into an international policeman.

Chanticleer May Soon Stand Alone

Popular sentiment throughout entente countries is rapidly compelling a change of trumps in the reparations game. Negotiations will now seek to secure what force has miserably failed to accomplish.

Battlefields are red ink wells. Exhausted budgets and tax-weary nationals insist upon an end to continental confusion.

Belgium, alarmed at a combination of British resentment, fuel shortage, perilous living costs, dwindling production, falling prices, inflated currency and tumbling stocks, prefers any reasonable settlement to further conflict.

Theunis has heard the stumble of Bonar Law's ministry, which escaped a fall by a bare margin of forty-eight votes.

He does not abandon hope of security and indemnity, but stipulates the enforcement of claims under the terms of the Versailles Treaty. Chanticleer must soon unspur or stand alone.

M. Poincare Will Be Much Annoyed

Lloyd George is again an honored prophet; Asquith and Sir John Simon have swung around to his way of thinking. Infuriated at the Cabinet's laissez faire attitude, they point to the grim aspect of over-channel affairs and urge intervention before revenge and despair compound another cataclysm.

Roland McNeill, speaking for Downing street, timidly whispers that interference will annoy Poincare, who has served notice against mediation. He predicts a smashed League of Nations if the matter is referred to that wobbly body.

The Gall of the Gaul

None of which daunts Labor Leader Thomas, who informs Parliament of railway workers and trades unionists maltreated by the invaders, and begs to know how a people unable to pay their debts, here, there or anywhere, contrive to lend Poland 400,000,000 gold francs, enormous stores of munitions and 30,000 officers to train its army.

Secretary Hughes could tell him that most of it came out of America's confiscated share of reparations. The State Department doesn't take kindly to the proposition that we accept reimbursement for Coblenz expenses with a few Teuton ships and gradual percentage of future settlements.

At the highest estimate those liners are worth $16,000,000. Our bill runs about a quarter of a billion.

The ancient name of France was Gaul. It's still appropriate.

Some Wrinkled Brows and Trousers

King Edward lived in happier times. London tailors remind the Prince of Wales that he inherits a family proclivity. His grandfather devoted much thought to sartorial invention. They recall that he even creased his pants sidewise. One of the few privileges remaining to monarchs. Some have even begun to wear wrinkles in theirs.

W. K. Vanderbilt paid $2,500,000 for the Duke of Marlborough. Dukes aren't bringing quite so much lately. Recent quotations on aristocratic stock are far below par. Folk with the title hanker will find an extensive assortment of authentic coronets in the Woolworth department of the matrimony market. Fresh shipments weekly via Ellis Island.

At Least They're Not Pikers

Army planes have been sent South to spray the cotton fields. Secretary Davis thinks that we could settle boll weevil with sufficient airships and the five million dollars for calcium arsenate which the Senate appropriated and the House filibuster killed.

No more flying fire patrols for the Pacific Northwest. Demobilized by deficit. For want of a nail, the shoe was lost. For lack of a pittance miles of Oregon and Washington timber will feed forest bonfires.

As you pay your income tax consider the brilliant management of the billions you send to Washington.

Sixty Republicans and Democrats have formed a progressive block for the next session. Perhaps they'll drop a penny or so in conservation's cup. They expect to control committees, manage taxes, force presidential and congressional primaries, expand co-operative associations, prevent further wars, obtain soldiers' compensation and protect the public's interest in coal, timber or waterpower and natural resources. Nil desperandum.

If they bring half of it to pass, admiring democracy will order sixty additional marbles for Statuary Hall.

Putting It Over on the Doctors

Attending physicians haven't yet explained how a prankish girl managed to mystify experienced judgment with a thermometer and a hot-water bottle. A hoary hospital trick.

Any doctor of extensive experience recalls parallel cases. Neurotic patients do such things to incite sympathy.

Shrewd cross-examiners won't forget the episode when experts hereafter take the stand.
